

Hoover Urges Return of U. S. to Gold Standard To Restore Confidence

Convertible Dollar, Says Former President, Would Tend to Check Inflation, Provide Employment, Aid Recovery.

TALKS ON RULING

Says Supreme Court Agrees That Act is Unconstitutional, But Private Citizen Has No Remedy.

Tucson, Ariz., Feb. 21 (AP).—Smashing his self-established precedent of silence as a "private citizen," former President Herbert Hoover urged reestablishment of the gold standard to "restore confidence in our currency" as a needed contribution to "real recovery."

If the dollar were made convertible at the present 59 cents of gold, he said in a statement here last night, "it would tend to check inflation, replace relief with real employment, and contribute materially to general recovery."

In his comment on the Supreme Court's gold clause decision, Mr. Hoover broke his consistent policy of refusing to express his opinion upon political matters—a policy he began when he left the presidency March 4, 1933. As recently as Monday he declined to comment on the gold decision with his habitual remark, "I am no longer in public life."

His departure from his usual custom came as he returned with his son, Allan, from a visit to New York. While he repeatedly disclaimed political implications, the titular chief of the Republican party was nevertheless greeted all along his route by political allies and former officials.

All members of the court, he commented, "agreed the government acted unconstitutionally in repudiation of the covenant on its own bonds," although a majority held the private citizen "has no remedy."

"That will have long moral consequences," he said, "but whatever the moral, right or wrong, of the devaluation may be, the face of the American people must be forward."

"The need, and the opportunity now is to restore confidence in the dollar. All threat of further devaluation should now be removed. To do this and to give a needed contribution to real recovery, the dollar should immediately be made convertible at the present 59 cents of gold, making it payable in gold bullion."

Return to the gold standard, he said, would do more than any other single action to put men to work because "people are hesitant to invest their savings and take long term risks because there is uncertainty in what value they will be repaid."

A convertible gold currency now, he said, would help avoid "the otherwise inevitable budget deficits," "improving taxation," and further devaluation or inflation.

Inflation, Mr. Hoover said, may give an "appearance of false prosperity," "but there is no real recovery on inflation medicine."

Mr. Hoover continued his journey toward his Palo Alto home today after stopping last night at Chandler, Ariz.

His expenses for the trip were paid by a New York life insurance company to which he was indebted as a director upon the nomination of Alfred E. Smith, his 1932 rival for the presidency. Both the expenses and a $50 fee were paid in currency, not in gold coin as was formerly the time-honored custom at directors' meetings.

Agrees With Hoover

New York, Feb. 21 (AP).—Col. Theodore Roosevelt, president of the National Republican Club, "agreed most heartily" today with former President Hoover's assertion that the gold standard should be re-established "to restore confidence in our currency."

Commenting on Hoover's statement made yesterday at Tucson, Ariz., Col. Roosevelt demanded adoption of "plans to balance our budget and discontinue this scandalous squandering of public money."

He urged cash relief for recovery rather than the present public works program.

"I most heartily agree with former President Hoover's statement as to the re-establishment of the gold standard," Col. Roosevelt remarked. "Such action would do much toward re-establishing confidence and bringing recovery, and it is the only solution to our unemployment problem."

Emergency Relief To Pay Employees Friday

As Friday is a legal holiday the works division of the local emergency relief bureau will be shut down that day with the exception of the crew of men at work on the East Clinton street sewer and water line.

The ERB will pay off at the municipal bank on East O'Reilly street Monday at 3 o'clock Friday morning.

The commission will be open at noon Friday and those who wish to obtain some of the government seal may do so at the commission where it is being distributed.

The office of the ERB in the former Patten plant on Broadway will be closed to clients all day tomorrow.

Hauptmann Jurors Not On Vaudeville Tour

New York, Feb. 21 (AP).—The Hauptmann jurors "returned to their normal way of living" today after having declined large salaries for a vaudeville tour.

Samuel Burger, theatrical promoter, disclosed that ten members of the jury met last night in Flemington, N. J., to decide whether or not to accept his offer of a ten weeks contract to appear in theatres and auditoriums throughout the country.

Charles Walton, Sr., jury foreman, presided.

"Walton told me that they decided to return to their normal way of living," Burger said today.

"I was going to pay Walton $300 a week and each of the others $200."

"The tour called for ten weeks work, and they might have made a good bit of money out of it."

Hauptmann Counsel Says Reilly Ignored Most Important Point

Fisher Says His Chief Refused to Call Autopsy Experts to Prove Body Found Was Not Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr.

New York, Feb. 21 (AP).—A former defense investigator said today counsel for Bruno Hauptmann had ignored evidence that the body in the murder case could not have been that of the Lindbergh baby.

Seven autopsy experts were ready to show, declared George H. Foster, that the body found five miles from Hopewell, N. J., and identified by Col. Charles A. Lindbergh as that of his son, in reality was:

Three Reasons

(1) More than four inches taller than Charles Lindbergh, Jr.;

(2) Decomposed more than would have been possible in the mild weather after the kidnapping; and

(3) Embalmed.

Foster is chief investigator for James M. Fawcett, who was replaced as Hauptmann's counsel before the trial.

His assertion came as the present defense staff prepared to gather in Trenton late today for a conference on their disagreement over appeal procedure. This was understood to be due in part to the failure of Edward J. Reilly, chief counsel, to attack the state's identification of the body.

Associated with Reilly are C. Lloyd Fisher, designated as Hauptmann's "chief of New Jersey counsel"; Frederick A. Pope, and Egbert Rosecrans.

"We have neglected to take advantage of the most important point in the defense case," Fisher said when Reilly did not challenge the corpus delicti. "Without warning to the rest of us, Reilly suddenly announced that Lindbergh should know the body of his own child and let it go at that."

Fawcett Data

Data collected by Fawcett and his aides had been turned over by court order to the present defense attorneys.

Regarding these, Foster said: "We had produced seven experts in autopsy work who were prepared to show that the body was not that of the Lindbergh baby."

"Three of our experts are undertakers who had served the federal government during the war as autopsy experts."

"There were also three pathologists who are connected with large New York hospitals and one other doctor who is known well in the autopsy field and who saw in the Trenton morgue the body described as the Lindbergh baby."

"We were going to challenge identification on three points mainly."

"In the first place the body found was 2 1/2 inches long, whereas the Lindbergh baby was described at the time of the kidnapping as being only 23 inches."

"We would show that a body does not decompose readily at a temperature below 50 degrees Fahrenheit. Between March 1, 1932, when the baby disappeared, and May 12, when the body was discovered the mean average temperature was less than 57 degrees."

"The doctor who saw the body in Trenton was prepared to testify that it had been embalmed and that this fact was recognized at the time by one of the attending state physicians. We had pictures of the body, and they disclosed the fact that it could not have been recognized, no decomposition had become."

Senator Wagner's Labor Bill Introduced, Would Make Worker Free Man

Measure Would Outlaw Company Dominated Unions, and Also Provide For Majority Rule in Collective Bargaining.

ONE MAJOR CHANGE

Bill Establishes Principle of Majority Rule, Which Has Been Adopted by Labor Board.

Washington, Feb. 21 (AP).—Senator Wagner (D-N. Y.) introduced today his labor disputes bill, which would outlaw "company dominated" unions, provide for majority rule in collective bargaining and create a permanent national labor relations board with power to enforce its findings in the federal courts.

He said it was designed to make the worker a "free man" and would "clarify the industrial atmosphere and reduce the likelihood of another conflagration of strife."

Containing there had been a "breakdown" of Section 7-A, the labor section of the recovery act, Wagner said his measure would give notice to all that the solemn pledge made by Congress when it enacted 7-A cannot be ignored with impunity, and that a cardinal principle of a New Deal for all and not some of our people is going to be supported and preserved.

Introducing his bill close upon President Roosevelt's recommendation for extension of the National Recovery Act for two years, Wagner told interviewers he was "confident" of administration support.

The president, in his message to congress yesterday, did not mention by name Section 7-A or the Wagner bill. He merely recommended that the rights of employees freely to organize for the purpose of collective bargaining should be fully protected.

The Wagner bill is a redraft of a measure which he proposed at the last session of congress, but which was lost in the closing legislative jam in the face of a nation-wide assault from industry.

In placing the bill before the senate, Wagner charged it had been the target of "misleading propaganda" that it would create a "labor dictatorship."

He denied the measure would favor any particular union, create a closed shop, or force any employee to join a union against his will.

One Major Change

One major change in the measure establishes the principle of majority rule which has been adopted by the temporary national labor relations board. This provides that a majority of employees may select representatives for the purposes of collective bargaining which "shall be the exclusive representatives of all the employees."

It provides further, however, that any individual employee or group of employees shall have the right to present grievances to their employers through their own representatives.

The bill would create a permanent national labor relations board with power to enforce its findings through the federal courts.

Reviewing the history of section 7 (a), Wagner said under the Recovery Act "industry's freedom of action has been encouraged" but "employees attempting in good faith to exercise their liberties under section 7 (a) have met with repeated rebuffs."

The present labor board, he said, had done a "marvelous service," but was gradually losing its effectiveness because of inability to enforce its decisions. The situation, he added, "is reducing section 7 (a) to a sham and a delusion."

Bitter Controversy Seen As 3-Cornered Interests Clash on NRA Extension

Industry, Union Labor and "Monopoly" Enemies Are Ready to Press Demands for Revision of Recovery Act.

SECTION 7-A

Fierce Battle Expected to Center Around Provision Concerning Collective Bargaining.

Washington, Feb. 21 (AP).—President Roosevelt's recommendation for a two-year extension of NRA headed today straight into a legislative situation bearing all the signs of bitter controversy. Observers wondered whether the fights would be over much before June, when the present recovery act expires.

Arrayed for the skirmishing were the forces of industry, union labor and those who accuse NRA of fostering "monopoly." They were all ready to press their demands.

There was no doubt at all in the minds of legislators that one of the fiercest struggles probably would rage around section 7-A—the collective bargaining provision. They noted that President Roosevelt simply called for protection of "the rights of employees freely to organize for the purpose of collective bargaining" and did not disclose whether he desires the section changed or continued as it is.

Senator Wagner (D-N. Y.), who holds that the recovery act has failed to gain some of the ends expected of it, planned to introduce today his revised labor disputes bill.

Wagner has been one of the administration's principle advisers on labor and social matters and has been hoping that the administration would back his bill. So far as is known, such support has not yet been forthcoming.

Donald Richberg, director of the National Emergency Council, said revision of section 7-A was a matter entirely for Congress to decide, but he expressed the personal opinion that the section was adequate.

The American Federation of Labor and others are striving to obtain enactment of the Black 30-hour week bill, fought by industrial and business leaders and frowned upon by high administration officials. This bill has just been approved by a subcommittee of the Senate Judiciary committee and the full committee is expected to call it up next week.

The Senate finance committee, which will draft the bill for the new NRA, expects to make an investigation into the Blue Eagle and the administration of codes. It approved yesterday the Nye-McCarran resolution for such an investigation, which was prompted by allegations that small business is being oppressed.

GIRL'S ARREST STARTS HER TOWARD HAPPINESS

New York, Feb. 21 (AP).—Life grew more and more bleak for Isabel Jones—until she was arrested.

She was charged with disorderly conduct by a special officer. Her offense was peddling packages of needles and pins on a Brooklyn subway train last night.

Police Sergeant Joseph Dunn was on the train. He heard the girl's story, that she had come to New York with her 3-year-old brother after their parents were killed in a Pennsylvania automobile accident.

That she could not hold a job because she was going blind.

Dunn accompanied her to the police station. Then an inspector sent his police chauffeur to drive her to Magistrate Sabbatino's home, where court was held in the parlor so that she need not spend the night in jail.

The judge, learning she could earn only $1 a day, accepted her personal bond for $100 and promised to try to find her a job.

Dunn completed the arrest by buying the girl a meal, giving her $1 and starting her home instead of to a cell. He planned to be in court at her arraignment today.

FRENCH MOVIE DIRECTOR DECIDES AGAINST DUELING

Paris, Feb. 21 (AP).—The duel between Bertrand de Jouvenel and Julien Rivivier, was called off today by Rivivier, motion picture director.

was quoted by his seconds as saying the "duelists believe in dueling."

de Jouvenel, journalist, said it was "deplorable" that an adversary refuse "satisfaction by arms."

The controversy arose from the journalist's recantment of "dueling" remarks. He said Rivivier made after the Jouvenel had called him unfavorable editorials of an unkind character.

The director's seconds met with three of de Jouvenel in a cafe today to talk over the matter and the duel was cancelled as a result of the action.

Girl at Home

Frederickburg, Va., Feb. 21 (AP).—Back from her blind kidnapping adventure to be home, a 16-year-old girl, who had been held for 10 days, was today apparently unharmed and suffering no ill effects from her experience which ended this morning when her father said he found her "tired in the woods" about a mile from her home.

Two Beautiful American Girls Plunge From Airplane To Death

Gold an Issue For Next Presidential Election

Washington, Feb. 21 (AP).—With the administration telling former President Hoover indirectly that it was "satisfied" with its monetary policies, gold today was thrust forward as a potential issue for the next presidential election.

Many highly-placed Republicans, in and out of congress, supported Hoover's advocacy in Arizona yesterday of a return to the gold standard, but independents of that party and Democrats in general cried "impossible, fantastic."

Speaker Byrns told newsmen it would be "natural" for some persons to assume that the Hoover declaration was a "campaign statement."

Secretary Morgenthau spoke for the administration at his press conference.

"I am perfectly satisfied with the way our monetary policy has worked out during the last year and see no reason for changing it."

However, he did remind reporters the policy was on a day-by-day basis.

Upminster, Essex, Eng., Feb. 21.—Two beautiful American girls, Elizabeth and Jane DuBois, the only children of a United States consul general, plunged from an airplane to death today. Friends said they started on their last flight heartbroken over the recent crash-deaths of two men of the Royal Flying Corps.

They fell from a commercial airplane speeding to Paris at an altitude of 1,500 feet. Horrified witnesses, looking up, said they plummeted to earth "clashed hand in hand in a last embrace."

The girls' father is Coert DuBois, United States consul general in Naples.

London friends said the girls were grief-stricken by the crash-deaths of two officers of the Royal Flying Corps, February 15, aboard the big flying boat "Ace of Diamonds" in Sicily.

A report from Naples said Elizabeth had been engaged to marry Flight Lieut. Henry Longfield Beatty, commander of the Ace of Diamonds, and Jane had been engaged to Flying Officer John A. C. Forbes. Both were killed outright with seven companions in one of the flying corps' worst peace-time disasters.

The Misses DuBois, said their friends, were often with the two officers when the Ace of Diamonds was in Naples during January and the early part of February.

The girls had been living in a west-end hotel in London for the last four or five days, coming to England only a short time after the funeral of the British crash-victim in Italy. Their tears and hysterical excitement of interest of attendants at the London hotel.

(The dead in the crash of the Ace of Diamonds were Flight Lieut. Henry Longfield Beatty, Flying Officer John A. C. Forbes, Lieutenant William, four other officers named Allen, Bailey, Rees and Wogan, Sergeant Wallace and a civilian named Penn.)

Had Reserved Every Seat.

The girls flew out to death alone for, aside from the airplane's pilot, there was no other person on the eight-passenger ship. The Misses DuBois had reserved and paid for every seat in the plane, apparently in order to be by themselves on the channel crossing.

The plane's pilot, J. Kirton, did not notice his sole passengers' disappearance until an hour later when he was well out over the channel.

Scotland Yard detectives were immediately sent out from London on the case for two sealed letters were found on one of the seats in the plane after the horrified pilot took it back to Komford Air port.

Officials described the dual death as the strangest air tragedy in Europe since Capt. Alfred Loewenstein, the famous Belgian financier, disappeared July 4, 1928, from a cabin plane over the English channel.

The two letters were said to have been addressed to the girls' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Coert DuBois. Their father is United States Consul General at Naples.

Land in Cabbage Patch.

The bodies landed in a cabbage patch, close to the edge of town. The impact drove them a foot into the soft soil. The first police on the scene outlined the spot with cones of wooden posts.

The plane was operated by Hillman School Coaches and Airways, Ltd., which runs passenger services from Komford to Paris.

A Hillman official said that the doors of their cabin planes lock from the inside. A cabin door could easily be opened from the inside, and the official when he was questioned as to whether the passengers had been warned of this.

Army Papers Are Reported Missing

Washington, Feb. 21 (AP).—Described as important and "relating in an intimate way to some army officers," a set of papers was disclosed today to be missing from the office of Chairman McSwain (R-S-C) of the House Military Committee.

McSwain said he had "searched every nook" without finding them.

Strang hints that the documents involved a possible investigation came from authoritative quarters.

McSwain said the papers did not relate to any past investigation, but when asked as to their pertinence to any future inquiry, he remarked significantly, "I don't think I can read the future."

Later, he declined to disclose the names of the officers reported to be concerned, or to identify the documents, asserting that to do so "might embarrass the investigation."

He would not speculate on whether anyone might have broken into his office. He said, however, that last summer officers of the committee were called.

New York, Feb. 21 (AP).—The Union League Club, setting down its own rules for 24 years, has admitted women to membership. They are to have all the privileges, except voting, and this right may be given them shortly.

"It's a bold move," commented the president, Frederick J. H. Kravitz. "We never had women in the club before, but we believe that this is in accord with the spirit of the times. If we don't consider them, they won't consider us."

"Silver Ball" Attacker Strikes Again, But He Uses Stone and Rifle

Canandaigua, N. Y., Feb. 21 (AP)—Abandoning his "silver ball" in favor of stones and a rifle, the mysterious attacker of Raymond Vangrol, 29, of Victor, has struck again.

The latest assaults were revealed yesterday when Vangrol was ordered committed to Memorial Hospital for a mental examination. Sheriff Ernest Kerkle and Dr. C. M. Mead, city health officer, refused to reveal why the examination was ordered but said a report would be made to County Judge Horace W. Fitch.

The sheriff said several new attacks had been made upon Vangrol by a stranger who prowls about during the night, dressed in a long black coat and wearing a black mask. Last Monday night, Kerkle said, a rifle bullet was fired through a cellar window and narrowly missed Vangrol. Another time the stranger hurled stones at the house.

The boldest attack was about six weeks ago as police officers hid in the house to protect him. A tapping was heard on one of the windows and when officers rushed into the kitchen, Vangrol was found unconscious on the floor. Glass from the shattered window covered the floor. When the stranger first started terrorizing Vangrol his weapon was described as a "silver ball" which flashed through the air and disappeared after striking down its victim. It was thought to be a metal-tipped blackjack.

Tushkin Said He Paid George Markis $1,400

Widow of Murdered Man Brings Suit in Equity Against Mr. Tushkin Who Claims He Paid Markis Amount He Had in Hasbrouck Avenue Property

The high light in the equity action brought by Mrs. Rose S. Markis, administratrix of the estate of her murdered husband, George Markis, against Rudolph Tushkin of 62 Broadway, was Mr. Tushkin's testimony Wednesday afternoon at the hearing held before Judge G. D. B. Hasbrouck as referee, that Markis had had an interest of $1,400 in the property known as the former old Federation House at 88 Hasbrouck avenue, but that he, Tushkin, had paid Markis that amount in cash. In order that further testimony may be introduced an adjournment was taken until Saturday morning, March 9, at 9:30 o'clock at the courthouse.

Mr. Tushkin is represented in the proceedings by Cashin & Ewig while Mrs. Markis is represented by Flanagan & Kaecher.

Mr. Tushkin testified that Markis had invested $1,400 in the property, but was unable to raise the balance needed to take title and that he furnished the remainder of the money. Later, he said, Markis came to his home on Broadway and at that time Mr. Tushkin said his mother, Mrs. Tushkin, gave him the $1,400 in cash and that he paid that amount to Markis.

Mr. Tushkin said he did not take a receipt for the money which was paid Markis in the presence of himself, his mother, now dead, and Mrs. Kish, wife of Alex Kish who was found guilty of murdering Markis in February of 1934.

The murder of Markis was committed in the rooms occupied by Markis in the former Federation House property. Kish is now serving a term in Dannemora for the crime.

TRANSPORTATION MATTERS BEFORE HURLEY TAXPAYERS

A novel program of timely interest will be presented before the West Hurley Taxpayers' Association Thursday, February 28. M. C. Ferro, president of the association, announces.

Dr. Rowland Rogers of New York will direct the program, which involves the use of the "Flintalker," a modern electrical device which permits voice transcription in an illustrated address. The subject is titled "The Road Ahead—Why Better Transportation." The speaker brought by the "Flintalker" is Colonel Willard T. Chevalier, author, engineer and authority on transportation.

In this program, which is illustrated on the screen, Colonel Chevalier traces the fundamentals of transportation and their effects upon the public. He advocates a program for an adequate correlation of rail, air, water and highway transportation in America and points out the importance of motor-highway transport as an underlying essential to economic recovery.

Members of the club are being urged to bring their friends for this unique presentation.

CAPITAL NEWS

HOLLISTER STURGES, Jr.
Wings

Albany, Feb. 21 (Special)—Yesterday afternoon some 40 planes swooped down out of the heavily laden skies onto the crowded airport of the capital, bearing opponents of Senator A. Spencer Feld's aviation bill which would require certain tax increases to be levied on this industry. From New York came the largest squadron, with others hailing from Buffalo, Rochester, Syracuse, and Kingston. Bert A. Knauth, manager of the Kingston Airport, and Frances Burgerin winged their way north for 45 minutes in an effort to help kill this measure. They were the first arrivals, landing at 10:30 in the morning and barely escaped a rather short but severe snowstorm that delayed others who were yet in the air. Mr. Knauth was one of the speakers adverse to the measure. He declared that in his locality there are three projects now under way for private landing fields but subject to use by the public, and that passage of the Feld bill will mean discontinuing of those plans.

No one appeared as a proponent of the measure, however, and when the opposition had ceased it was up to Senator Feld himself to defend his proposed legislation which he proceeded to do admirably. He criticized opponents of the bill for speaking solely on the tax problem, and then listed the four major essentials that the bill calls for: A codification of all aviation laws affecting this state, the creation of a permanent commission appointed by the governor, a centralized agency for regulatory assistance with an executive salaried officer, and a declaration of policy for 100 per cent cooperation with the federal government. He advocated the securing of some $20,000,000 to subsidize New York's aviation industry once a permanent commission is set up.

Vassar Apparently the feminine charm still lingers in the Senate, for this austere body is undecided what to do with Senator Numan's compulsory oath bill, which requires students attending public educational institutions to swear to support the state and federal constitutions, for which 30 Vassar undergraduates rallied to defeat on Tuesday. Representing 50,000 New York college men and women, the fair spokesmen denounced this bill at a public hearing two days ago, and some of the Senators are still a bit agog as to which way to turn. As one sage has rightly said, "Women reduce us all to the common denominator."

Sterilization. Assemblyman E. Ogden Bush, whose county of Delaware which he represents is in the same senatorial district which backs Senator Arthur H. Wickes of Kingston, has introduced a bill which is a companion to one by Senator Martin W. Deyo, which will provide for eugenic sterilization of persons institutionalized who are afflicted by hereditary with mental defective diseases.

Dr. Bush appeared uncertain as to the possible passage of such a measure, but Senator Deyo seemed confident that his new hygienic legislation will be enacted. In explaining its provisions and benefits, Mr. Deyo pointed out that permission for such an operation must be granted by the patient. He held up California as an illustration of how well such a law has worked out there: since 1901 until January 1, 1933, over 9,000 operations have been performed, and consent has been granted 6 times out of 7. In this state there are 13,000 persons in institutions who are afflicted with mental disorders, and another 1,000 on parole. To guard against future generations the proposed law would make possible the paroling of about half those now confined to the state institutions and also save millions of dollars to tax payers, as those released would have an opportunity to earn a normal livelihood. The Senator declared the institutions today are over-crowded by 30% their normal capacity.

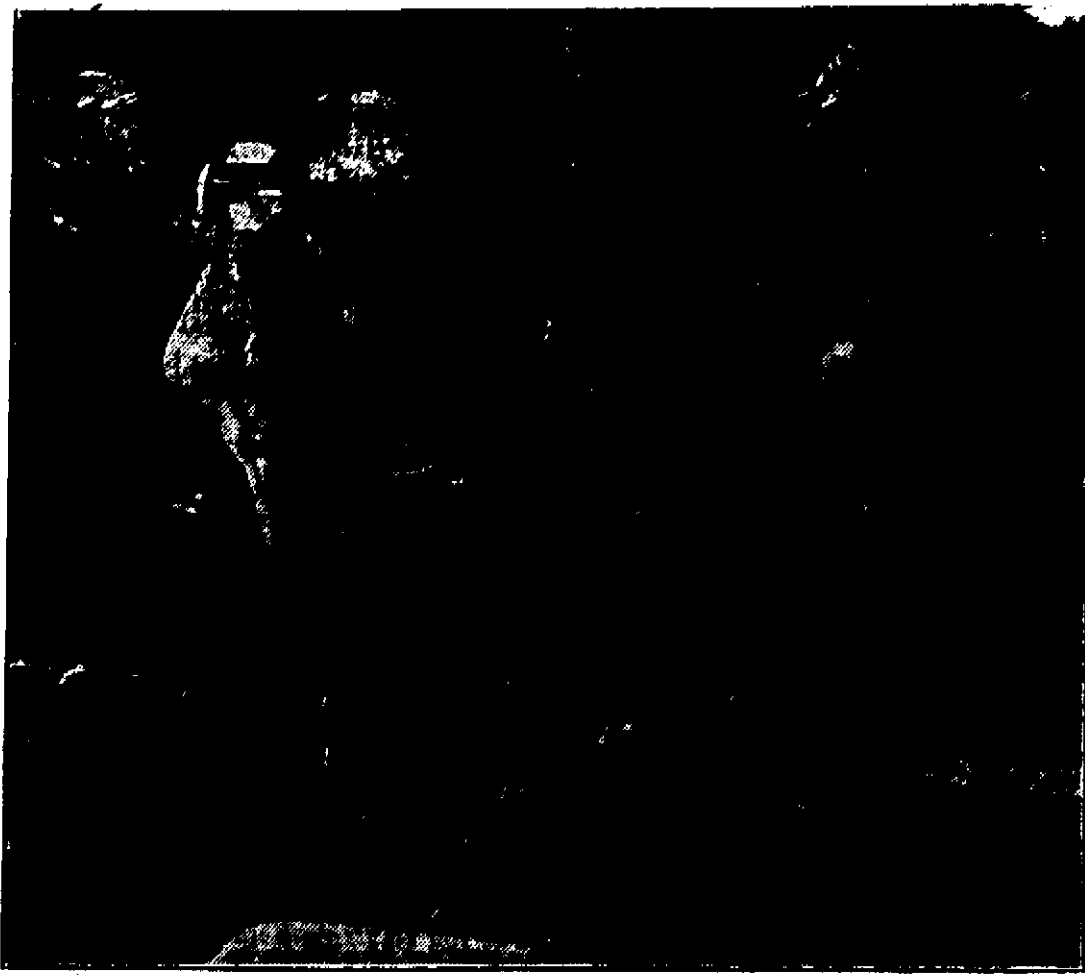

In the 27 states that have sterilization laws some 16,000 have been operated on. New York had laws to this effect from 1912 until 1918 when they were repealed, and during this time treated fifty patients, but the laws were faulty and done away with. Some protests will be registered against the bill, it reported from its judicial committee where it is now resting; Senator Deyo is prepared to grant public hearings to more fully explain his view on this matter.

Public Utilities. In a statement issued yesterday by Senator John J. Dunnigan a stinging blow was hurled at Milo R. Maltbie, Chairman of the Public Service Commission, for attempting to discredit the work of the joint legislative committee to investigate public utilities, and for his lack of accomplishments during the past several years in comparison to what the legislative committee has done, insofar as being helpful to millions of consumers in this state. Counsel for Mr. Dunnigan's committee has advised the so-called "five per cent law" unconstitutional. Mr. Maltbie is the recipient of this and other criticism.

"Expert". Senator George R. Fearon, upper house minority whip, described a medical expert as a doctor who is away from home. This quip was used in his fight against any increase of compensation rates which he advocated would soar sky-high under the pending legislation before the house. He came out for the defense of an injured employee, however, and hinted at the Democratic side that it was taking away such a person's opportunity for a fair settlement because of the value covering medical examinations that make it difficult for employees to prove the extent of their disability owing to requirements by law as to what doctors shall testify on their behalf and on behalf of the employer.

Runs. Much of Broadway's celebrated talent shared the halls of the capital building yesterday to defend their rights on the Great White Way.

Colleen Moore's Doll House to Aid Children

New York, Feb. 21 (AP).—Colleen Moore's doll house—a fourteen-foot fairy castle with eleven rooms—will arrive in New York April 1 for its world premiere.

The architectural toy, built at a cost of $435,000, will be taken on a world tour, and the proceeds from exhibitions will be donated to hospitals for crippled children.

Built in scale of an inch to the foot, the doll's house contains these marvels:

Helps Nature Keep Sinus Drainage Clear

Your druggist has a prescription that affords a healing stimulant that aids nature to keep sinus drainage clear.

This prescription, used by thousands, is known as SINASIPTEC.

Used as directed in the upper nasal passages, it reduces symptoms of allergies, cures sinusitis, and also reduces chances of more severe sinus trouble—your pharmacist knows this.

Needless to say, Sinasipitec is a splendid cleansing wash when nostrils are clogged with catarrh or filled with mucus resulting from common colds.—Advt.

A gold cathedral organ 15 inches high, which plays music.

A feathered nightingale operated by electricity. It sings from a glass tree in Aladdin's garden.

Light bulbs the size of wheat grains.

Miniature water tanks that feed live fountains. As the tanks empty, chimneys ring in the steeples.

A Robot fairy princess who sings, answers questions and dances in a garden grotto.

A Bible the size of a baby's thumb nail.

Live tropical fish in the garden pool, where Cinderella's ivory horses drink.

Seven hundred artists and craftsmen worked on the doll house, and its completion took nine years.

Willy Fogarty, James Montgomery Flagg and George McManus are among the artists who worked on it. Many novelists gave the library miniature books in their own handwriting.

Among the book donors were Edna Ferber, Louis Bromfield, Irvin S. Cobb, Kathleen Norris, Sinclair Lewis, Booth Tarkington and Fannie Hurst.

Colleen Moore said the doll's house was one of her childhood dreams.

The House Awakes!

By ANNE CAMPBELL

THE house awakes with Dickie, whose bare feet come pattering across the sunny hall. And then the other children's voices fall.

Across the quiet rooms; and on our street.

A dozen houses, filled with children, rise.

And dust the sleep out of their drowsy eyes.

When off to school the happy children go.

The house sinks in a sleep as deep as Death.

And does not wake till the returning breath.

Of children make its staring windows glow.

And down our street a dozen houses shout.

And wake to happiness when school is out!

Ancient Egyptians' Love for Cats Never Equalled

C-A-T spells Cat.

From the blackboards of little red schoolhouses and those of metropolitan cities, this line brought our first lesson in spelling. It started our education, observes a writer in the Los Angeles Times, which later brought us through the historical stories of the ancient Egyptians, who accorded Miss Puss their whole-hearted worship. We learned of their religion, which decreed that whole families and whole cities go into mourning at the death of a cat; learned that the death of a kitten called for the shaving of the worshiper's eyebrows; that troops of cats were maintained within temple walls, choicely fed; that any "noble Roman" causing injury or death to a cat, whether it be accidental or intentional, was torn to pieces. Later, we learned that Miss Puss served as a symbol of witchcraft.

In the cat can be found a more universal response to her prime utility. Long haired or short haired, Siamese, Manx, Persian, or just "common alley cat," she offers the best self-defensive mousetrap that has been found in all her 3,000 years of domestication. In this utility, she has saved a world from vermin that might have otherwise destroyed it.

Behind the intense glance of attentive big eyes is a brain, centuries old in intelligence, responsibility and resourcefulness that has brought her triumphantly through the long period of maltreatment by humans, pursuit by larger animals and battles for existence.

Hawaii Is Farther Away From Land Than Others

Hawaii is situated in the middle of the Pacific ocean, farther away from the nearest land than any other spot on earth, writes a correspondent in the Chicago Tribune. It has been piled up by volcanoes until now the heights of Mauna Kea rise 14,970 feet above sea level and more than 32,000 feet above that profound abyss known as the ocean floor.

If the position of Hawaii is unusual, its people are even more so. They include almost every race on earth, orientals predominating. Sugar is by far the most important industry in this isolated land, and its cultivation requires a quinquennial position for the worker. Orientals, the prime quarters of the world, were therefore induced to go to Hawaii. A century or so ago it was Chinese who predominated. Then came a wave of Japanese, after their crowded country was opened to the world in the sixties and seventies. When the immigration restriction law no orientals was passed, a tremendous labor problem arose. Hawaii was now (1924) a territory of the United States, and labor was sought all over the world. They tried everybody from Cubans to Portuguese, but a solution was reached only with the comparatively recent importation of Filipinos (not affected by the immigration laws) who are now squinting all over the place, and mixing up with the others.

Valparaiso

Valparaiso is Spanish for Vale of Paradise. The chief seaport of Chile, it dates back to 1535. Immediately behind the shore the hills begin to rise, and the city, containing a quarter of a million persons, is built on these hillside. On clear days Mount Acapulco, the highest point on this hemisphere, may be seen towering above its Andean brothers. In Valparaiso women work as conductors on the street cars, which are double deckers. Santiago, the capital of Chile, is reached by train from the seaport. It is a combination of Paris and Madrid, and its site is second to beauty to that of Rio de Janeiro. Santa Lucia hill overlooks the entire city. In Santiago the women are extremely religious, while the men are inclined to agnosticism.

Cave New Zealand Home

Just about the time when Vikings may have been exploring Labrador, New Scotia and the coast of Maine, there lived in Rarotonga, an island of what is now the Friendly Group, a Polynesian navigator called Kupe. He was known for his intrepidity in a community where the virtue was common. Kupe paid a visit to Rarotonga, 300 miles from his home, and there decided to see what lay to the south. There are no details of that voyage of discovery. All that is known is that on a November morning Kupe's wife saw the clouds over the land to the south of Auckland, and from that came the Maori name for New Zealand—Aotearoa, the long white clouds.

Pierce Arrow Is Displayed at Show

One of the cars displayed at the Automobile Show by the Mid-Hudson Pierce Corporation, is the Silver Arrow. This car was designed and developed by the Pierce Arrow Motor Car Company in 1932, and was the first air-flow style of body made in America.

The bodies the first year were built entirely by hand, the production being very small and each car was sold as soon as it was ready for delivery, the price being $10,000, but today the car is sold at standard prices. This model has been copied by nearly all of the automobile manufacturers, but it still retains many of its unique features, and is probably the most unusual closed sport model automobile manufactured.

The particular automobile at the Municipal Auditorium is powered by Pierce Arrow's 175-horse power 12-cylinder motor, which develops more energy than any other stock motor built today, it is said.

In 1933 on the Salt Beds adjoining Great South Lake in Utah, this 12-cylinder motor broke many stock car speed records and averaged a little over 118 miles an hour for 24 hours. In 1934 the motor, refined and improved, drove a standard Pierce Arrow car 3,028 miles in 24 hours, an average of over 126 miles an hour for 24 continuous hours. The car was traveling all of the time except for 40 minutes spent at the control to renew the gas and oil and check the tires.

In previous speed tests, the cars have been driven by a team of three or four drivers, each of whom would drive a couple of hours and be succeeded by one of his teammates. In both of the above tests the car was driven continuously by the Pierce Arrow speed driver who operated the car for the entire 24 hours without assistance.

It is through the courtesy of John D. Casey, executive vice president of the Pierce Arrow Motor Car Company, that the visitors to the Automobile Show will have the privilege of inspecting the Silver Arrow. During a part of the time at the show, Harry Williams, long a Pierce Arrow executive, will be present, and glad to meet the people from Ulster county and vicinity.

Uses for Mercury

Mercury, or quicksilver, so widely employed in thermometers, has a great variety of uses than any other metal. It is utilized in a thousand different ways in the arts, chemistry and medicine. Mercuric salts, especially the chloride and iodide, writes Trevor Sanks, New York city, in Collier's Weekly, are the most powerful of all known antiseptics. Of the perchloride, one part in 2,000—the strength commonly employed in surgery—kills all known bacteria.

DOMESTIC GIRLS

If American young women generally may be judged by the students at Barnard College in New York city, they have changed in two striking ways from the girls of a few years ago. Dean Virginia C. Gildersleeve, stating that the college was "in touch with the world of the moment," told a large group of alumnae the other day that it is now fashionable to be domestic and unfashionable to be an "ardent feminist". That may disturb some of the predecessors of today's students, who fought the battles of feminism and to whom it is still a "cause". They need not be alarmed.

The domestic girls of today are not turning their backs on woman suffrage or planning to go into their homes and bar the door to all the outside world. They are studying social science and economics in college and are taking a keener interest in music and other arts. These things are helping to equip them to lead happy and useful lives with an intelligent interest and participation in community and national affairs.

They have reached maturity in a period when it is no longer necessary to carry banners in behalf of women's rights because many of the rights are taken for granted by everyone. There is no returning into a domestic shell as Hitler and Mussolini would have the women of Germany and Italy do. The fortunate young women of the present find they can serve on civic committees, vote on election days and preside over happy homes without any conflict of interests.

TALKING BOOKS

The American Foundation for the Blind announces that about 1,000 of the talking books which it manufactures and sells at cost have already been placed in the hands of blind persons. It is now campaigning for funds with which to provide machines for many others who need them but cannot afford to buy them.

The Library of Congress has been granted funds by Congress for the making of talking book records which may be borrowed free by the blind through libraries, just as books in Braille are now borrowed.

How important this work is may be understood from the fact that there are 120,000 blind persons in the United States today, nearly one-half of whom have lost their sight after middle age. Barely one-fourth of them can read Braille. The talking book records and the machine for "reading" it are a tremendous gain for them. It is, of course, much easier to listen to a phonograph record of a book than to spell out the text with one's fingers.

NEW FINANCING.

Business enterprise has been frozen up for five years, but at last the ice is beginning to break. The Securities Exchange Commission has reported a considerable increase in applications for new business financing. Inquiries come from many responsible business interests.

The resumption of old business is important, but the starting of new business with new capital is more significant. It means new confidence, a new disposition to look ahead instead of looking backward or handing out. The more new financing there is, especially in the "heavy" industries, the better the prospects will be for this year and the years following.

It need hardly be feared, either, in spite of fears felt last year, that there will be undue governmental interference with such new financing. The Securities Commission and related bodies are as eager as anyone to get business started again under its own power.

CABINET DEMOCRACY

It is with relief that a nation believes, like the French, in liberty, equality and fraternity. Some of the functions of cabinet officers automobiles to a maximum price of $2,500. The House appropriations committee has put this limit on cars to be provided for the state, justice, commerce and labor members, and it will apply to the rest of the cabinet when their turn comes for new cars.

It may be humiliating at first for cabinet dignitaries to appear in public in anything less than Cadillacs or Rolls Royces. But it won't be so bad when they get used to it, and when the whole cabinet is mobilized in a fleet of the same price range. Two and a half "grand", anyway, isn't so bad. The average price paid in this country today for new cars is considerably under $1,000.

PALESTINE'S SHIPS

Palestine has a merchant marine. Two new ships, the Mount Zion and the Tel Aviv, the first Palestine-owned vessels of modern times, began service on February 13. They will ply between Palestine, Constantinople and Trieste. Captains and crews are Jewish.

Two ships do not comprise a large fleet, but they are a beginning. Freight and passenger business to Palestine has been good even when similar business elsewhere has fallen off. It will be interesting to see the next development. Will there be more ships covering a steadily lengthening route and responding to a growing demand? And what will other shipping interests have to say about the newcomer in their midst?

SOME FOODS CAUSE ACNE.

Although pimples or acne is not a matter of life and death, this disfiguring ailment causes much embarrassment as the patients are usually under thirty at which time their personal appearance naturally means a great deal to them.

I have spoken before about the violent treatment used with such great success by Drs. Docketorsky and Platt of Chicago and now Dr. Cleveland White, Chicago, states that in many cases of acne some special food or foods are responsible.

A series of 32 cases was studied in which there were an eruption of pimples. Their ages ranged from 17 to 26; there were 20 women and 12 men. All these cases had received X-ray treatment with only temporary benefit. All the patients were in excellent general health.

The fact that the pimples occurred suddenly gave Dr. White the idea that some special food or foods might be the cause as cases are on record where such excellent foods as grapes, cantaloupes and eggs were shown to be the cause of the sudden eruption of pimples.

In this series of 32 cases the six most common causes were chocolate, milk, wheat, oranges, tomatoes and nuts.

The way that the special food that was causing the pimples was found was by placing the patient on the very simplest diet—green vegetables, fish or meat once a day, small amounts of bread, raw butter but no milk. If no pimples appeared in a week's time, a new food was added to the diet, every two days. If the food that caused the pimples was added to the diet, the pimples appeared in from 2 to 6 hours. Occasionally it took from 12 to 24 hours in some patients.

Now these foods that cause the pimples are good foods and necessary to the body therefore a method of giving them to the patient without causing the pimples was discovered. The patient is given a small quantity of the offending food about three quarters to one hour before the usual large quantity given at meal time. This small quantity brought out the body's natural resistance to the effects of the food, so that when the larger quantity was eaten an hour later, the eruption failed to appear.

Remember, food is the cause of acne only in some cases.

A RAPID-FIRE ROMANCE BY EVAN EVANS

SYNOPSIS: The Montana Kid and another second person, who have stolen the goods of Juan-Silva, a terrible master of the knife, find themselves in a predicament. They hope to make good for themselves, and to be able to rescue Juan-Silva, who is in the hands of the police. The Montana Kid, who is a very good man, is in the hands of the police. The Montana Kid, who is a very good man, is in the hands of the police.

Chapter 24
 JUAN-SILVA

TWO square-shouldered buildings stood in the center of the valley. One for the women, said a guard, and another for the men.

"But there are hundreds here—and how can they be crowded into places of that size?" asked Montana. "By sleeping them in tiers five high," grinned the guard, "and where there isn't room to lie down, they stand."

The thing spread itself in a grisly picture before the eyes of Montana—the thick of the gloom lighted by one or two dull lamps, and the groaning of the sick and the despairing, and the horrible steam and stench of close-packed humanity.

But somewhere within the walls of this valley was Mateo Rubia. Perhaps his chains were jangling in one of the nearby rows of hooks as he drove the blade of his bores deeper than the rest. And the thought of him transformed the place for the Kid. The strangeness of their past swept over him, and a feeling that there must be a future for them both.

They came, now, towards a building with a very long, low front.

"There's your master. There's Juan-Silva—and may God help you!" said one of the guard.

To which the captain answered, chuckling: "God can't look in here. The steam's too thick."

And once more they all laughed at this.

In front of the place they were halted. In place of the lariat, they were tied with short cords, even their feet being hobbled; afterwards, they were led through an entrance door down a naked hall, and so into the brightness of an open court.

Here sat Juan-Silva under an awning of the brightest old Mexican featherwork. He was cross-legged, like an Indian, on a mat of woven dyed grass, and he sat at the verge of a shallow run of water whose swift ripples threw upwards a continual play of reflected light on the face of the despot of the Valley of the Dead.

He wore, like the lowest of his laborers, only a loin cloth, so that Montana could see the withered limbs and the sagging pouch of an old man of eighty, at least. His head was bald as an egg. It was strangely shaped, with a dividing crease in the center between the big front and back lobes.

From his face the spare flesh had been melted away by time, but the skin had not shrunk to a tight fit. Over the jaws, beside the mouth and hanging under the chin, were almost rigid folds of the old, tough hide.

He had once been a tall man with wide shoulders and still he was not bowed, but the years had turned him into a mummy. And, as in a mummy of a young man, his sunken cheeks were drawn out lean and hard because he still possessed a full set of teeth. When he spoke, his lips first curled back over the teeth, which then parted before utterance came.

THIS curious contortion had the effect of a smile, at first, and afterwards it was as though he wanted to get his lips away, carefully, from teeth that might cut them. The voice itself was low-pitched and the vibrations could almost be counted. One might have called him a dying man, but Montana had the conviction that death would still be postponed for many years.

How did he manage to retain his place? Every year, according to rule, the tax inspectors, at least, journeyed into the Valley of the Dead, and every year they came out again without registering a claim against the monstrous rule of this evil old man. Well, money can close most mouths, even a little of it.

Juan-Silva was saying: "Have we visitors? Have we really visitors at last? What do you mean, my friends, by trying up their hands and hobbling their feet? Is that treatment for a guest?"

Balance Refined, Look at Life Optimistically

For generations the balance has been a rule of nature, employing the instincts of neighboring islands as their slaves. This helps to account for their reluctance, the perfect formation of their hands and feet and the small bones of their hands and feet. ## A Washington Daybook

By HERBERT PLUMMER

WASHINGTON — Probably the man with the most difficult task on Capitol Hill these days is the tall, dapper leader of that thin-skinned republican side of the dividing political aisle in the senate—Charles Linna McNary of Oregon.

While he doesn't carry the burden on his shoulders that Joe Robinson of Arkansas, the democratic leader, does, nevertheless his trials are about as great.

McNary is faced with the job of providing the leadership for perhaps the most split-up bunch of followers one can imagine. There are only 25 in his camp, but those 25 present almost that number of problems for him.

There's Borah of Idaho, for example, who boasts of the fact that he "always rides alone." There is Hiram Johnson of California, who sits in the seat next to McNary elected as a democrat, republican and an independent.

A Few 'Rock-Ribs'

NUMBERED among the 25 also are Norris of Nebraska and Cutting of New Mexico, who deserted the republican banner in 1932 to help elect Roosevelt. And there are a few of those rock-ribbed republicans to be found such as Dickinson of Iowa, Austin of Vermont and Hastings of Delaware.

Under normal conditions, with something like a unanimity of opinion and purpose among his followers, McNary's job would be difficult. At best he couldn't hope to make more than a dent in the solid wall of democrats with whom he must do battle daily. With the situation as it is, however, a man with a temperament other than his probably would despair.

The predicament in which the senate found itself during the first weeks of the session helped McNary little in his problems or Robinson himself, for that matter.

'Something To Talk About'

THE senate drifted along for days after disposing of the world court with little or nothing to do. Plans of the democratic high command went awry on the court issue.

One of the principal reasons the question was placed before the senate at the first crack of the gun this session was to give senators something to talk about until the administration could whip its program into shape for consideration. None of the democratic leaders, not even the President himself, was in a hurry for a vote.

Court opposition suddenly began to show such signs of strength, however, that it became imperative to act quickly in the hope of slaying off defeat.

With the piece of resistance removed, senators began grabbing at everything in sight to talk about. The leadership on both sides endured embarrassing moments.

In the house, the leadership sets aside periods from time to time to allow the members, as "Cactus Jack" Garner used to say, "to let off steam." When senators start to "let off steam," however, it's an entirely different proposition.

The Lamb Stays

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

WHAT is a Puddle Muddler, bleat, bleat?" asked the lamb.

"Well," explained Willy Nilly,

"you see I live with my animal friends.

This is my house, and while the ducks have their pond and the crow his nest and the rooster his shed, this is our head-quarters.

"The name of our little settlement is Puddle Muddler. When it rains there are many puddles.

"We do sometimes get into mud-dies, too, so that the name of Puddle Muddler is a very suitable one for our settlement to have. And we, who belong to Puddle Muddler, call ourselves, at times, the Puddle Muddlers."

"Oh, could I be a Puddle Muddler?"

"You don't have to be a rooster," said Rip. "It is just as well to be a dog who rips things up who really feels at home nowhere else. I am a Puddle Muddler."

"But I can't be a crow," sighed the lamb.

"You don't have to be a crow," said Rip. "It is just as well to be a dog who rips things up who really feels at home nowhere else. I am a Puddle Muddler."

"But I can't be a dog," moaned the lamb. "I'd really like to stay."

And he settled himself in a comfortable position.

High School P.-T. A.

The regular monthly meeting of the High School Parent-Teacher Association was held Tuesday evening, February 19, in the library. After a short business meeting, at which the very gratifying results of the card party were announced, a short excerpt from the "Parent Teacher" was read concerning Founder's Day. This day falls on February 17, and is celebrated each year at the meeting held that month. It is to commemorate the founders of the National Congress of Parent and Teachers—Alice Burney and Phoebe Hurst. The Rev. C. E. Brown, speaker of the evening, gave a very interesting and inspiring talk on "Shifting of the Responsibilities of Character Building from the Home to the School." Refreshments were served and a social hour enjoyed by all.

Trumpet Was Important

Even in the Trojan War

The trumpet was widely known in ancient times, playing its part in the fall of Jericho, and even in the Trojan war. Trumpets were martial and royal instruments through the Middle Ages, and the trumpeters' guild became important and influential.

The trumpet is a cylindrical tube about 8 feet long doubled back on itself for ease in handling. The trumpet has three valves or pistons, the use of which enables the player to produce all the tones in the chromatic scale within the compass of the instrument. The trumpet, like the horn, is provided with a mute, a pear-shaped affair that can be held in the bell in the place of the performer's fist.

The cornet, sometimes mistaken for the trumpet, notes a writer in the Washington Post, is a tapering brass tube a little over 4 feet in length. Its natural key is B-flat, though crooks may be used to set it in A, A-flat or G. The cornetist can give rapid passages, trills, and other embellishments with great ease, but the tone-color of the cornet is below that of the trumpet, which has a bold, martial tone that can be heard through the entire orchestra.

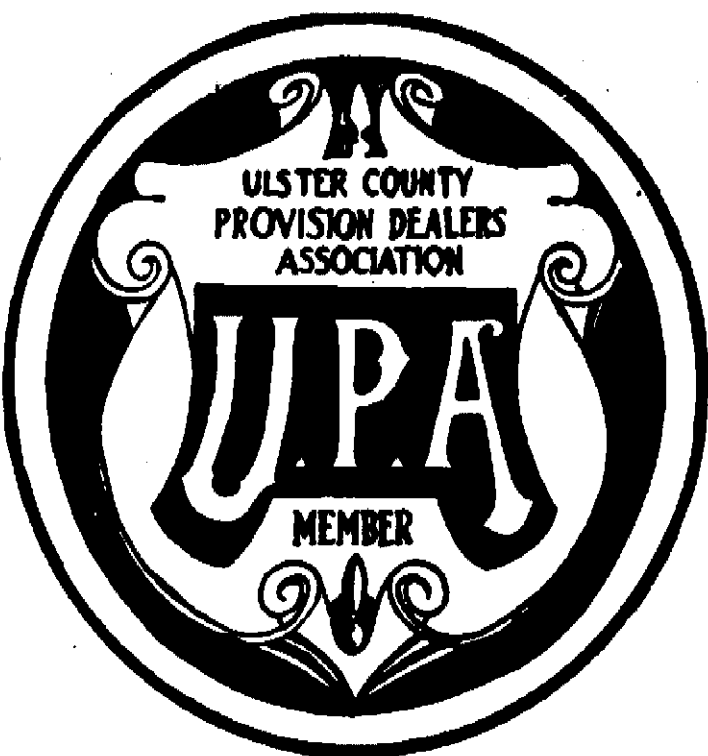

In the classical period of Haydn, Mozart and Beethoven, the trumpet was not very prominent. Wagner employed it extensively in some of his operas, and he used muted trumpets to imitate the tiny trumpets of the toy-makers' guild in "The Mastering of the Art of Love."

Irritation of Mantle Is

Cause of Pearl's Growth

A pearl is a growth in a pearl oyster or other shellfish caused by a persistent irritation of its mantle. The persistent irritation which causes pearl formation is usually due to the presence of some foreign matter which has entered the shell—sometimes a grain of sand or a fragment of broken shell. Probably in most cases it is the larvae of a parasite worm or a minute crustacean. Whatever the nature of the cause, the mollusk endeavors to reduce the irritation by inclosing it in a layer of the same kind of matter of pearl secreted of which the inside of the shell is made. Once started, the covering of secreted continues to grow by the addition of layer over layer until after a lapse of years the minute seed pearl formed near have grown into a pearl of large size.

As a natural pearl is a consequence of the accidental introduction of an irritant, it would seem that pearls could be cultivated by purposely introducing the irritant by artificial means. But the successful cultivation of pearls has proved to be a complicated process accomplished by the Japanese only after years of study and experiment. The nucleus of the culture pearl is a small seed pearl or it may be a minute ball of mother of pearl or other substance. This is first enclosed in a sack made from the mantle of a pearl oyster.

Federal Officials Use New Schultz Evidence

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 21 (AP).—The federal government today closed another legal loop-hole through which Dutch Schultz, mobster and beer racketeer, had hoped to evade trial on a charge of income tax dodging.

Looking slightly bewildered by the speed of the government's moves, the one-time beer czar was arraigned last night on a new indictment, returned in the northern district of New York, charging him with failure to pay income tax of $92,000 for 1929, 1930 and 1931.

Two years ago, Schultz, legally known as Arthur Flegenheimer, was indicted in the southern district for income tax evasion. He surrendered in Albany last November and his attorneys immediately began an attack on the legality of the indictment. They contended their client was a resident of the Bronx and therefore was not under the jurisdiction of the courts of the southern district in income tax matters.

As the legality of the first indictment was pondered by a United States commissioner who had been asked to return Schultz to New York city for trial, government officials went before a northern district federal grand jury and asked for another indictment. Their request was granted and the indictment was opened last night. It contained eleven counts, eight charging felonies and three misdemeanors.

At last night's arraignment Schultz pleaded not guilty. Bail of $75,000 was continued and the removal case dismissed. Federal Judge Frank Cooper, however, reserved the right to withdraw the bail if it was found to be subject to government confiscation.

This stipulation resulted from the filing of a lien on the bail bond by the government Tuesday. It was alleged the $1,000 Liberty bonds posted by Joseph Jacobson of New York city belonged to Schultz.

The government alleges that beer sales netted Schultz $131,500 in 1929; $202,000 in 1930 and $147,000 in 1931, a total of $481,000.

Witness Trees

When Michigan's land surveys were made from 80 to 100 years ago, surveyors marked the exact location of section corners with square wood stakes. This location was "witnessed" by trees which were blazed and marked with their distance and bearing with reference to the corner recorded in the surveyor's notes. With the passage of years, the square stakes have disappeared, but in spite of lumbering and forest fires, many witness trees still can be found. In many cases, burned-out stump holes of the witness trees are all that remain. In remnants of virgin timber stands or in swamps where fires did not penetrate, the markings of witness trees have been perfectly preserved by the new growth of the trees which has closed over them.

The most pleasure in spending your winters in the Sunny South is in letting your friends who can't afford it know that you can.

A real estate agent had on his books a farm which was supposed to be haunted. To disprove this story he hired a man to stay there one night. The following day, however, there was no sign of the man. But one window of the house had been smashed. Three days passed, and then the real estate agent encountered the man far out in the country.

Agent—Where have you been all this time?
Man—Boss, I've been coming back.

These are strange times to live in. A lot of people who would be classed as conservatives think that we should indulge in a new war, in order that money may be circulated freely enough to pay for the old one.

Friend—Did you ever attend a dinner dance?

Man—My boy, I have danced all night after I have eaten one of my wife's cooking.

A wife is a person who lets you tell it and then she tells it right.

Miss—I'm beginning to think that some men want a wife to order.

Chum—Yes, but many wives order whether their husbands want them to or not.

If a man is good at making excuses he's not much good at making good.

President Woodrow Wilson used to find great pleasure in relating how he once had his special train sidetracked at Hannibal, Mo., so that he might make a quiet pilgrimage to the monument erected on the bluffs to Mark Twain. Unknown to the natives, he asked one of them if he remembered Tom Sawyer.

"Never heard of him," the Missourian made answer.

"Do you recollect Huckleberry Finn?" asked the president.

"Finn? Finn?" mused the native. "There was a family of Finns down the road a piece, but I don't think there was a Huckleberry among 'em."

"Do you happen to recall Puddinghead Wilson?"

"Oh, yes, sure; I voted for him twice, sir!"

HOLLYWOOD SIGHTS & SOUNDS

By ROBBIN COONS
HOLLYWOOD—If anybody feared that the Fred Astaire-Ginger Rogers team, after clicking in "The Gay Divorcee," would be merged again in a "quickie" to capitalize on the success, their new film "Roberta" will dispel the thought.

Often after a star has scored, the first thought at his studio is to put out another picture as quickly as possible. "Roberta" shows as much, or more, production care as its predecessor, and at the same time it is not a slavish imitation of the "Divorcee" formula.

Besides Astaire and Rogers, the picture stars Irene Dunn who does most of the singing, including "Smoke Gets in Your Eyes," hit of the stage musical of the same title.

Ends With Fashion Show

Opposite Miss Dunn in the story, a pearly-eyed Randolph Scott, here breaking away from "westerns," and making much of a good role. The story has Scott and Astaire, manager and leader respectively of an orchestra, stranded jobless in Paris. Scott's Aunt Roberta (Helen Westlake) is the capital's leading dressmaker. In her shop works Stephanie (Miss Dunn) and one of the patrons is Scharwenka (Miss Rogers), an American night-club star posing as a countess. When Roberta dies, she leaves the business to her nephew, and Scott, assisted by Astaire, tries to run it. It ends, after romantic complications, in a big musical fashion-show, at which the Astaire-Rogers team sparkles in song and dance. Miss Dunn sings, and women fans are treated to a display of Hollywood's "latest Parisian creations" designed by Bernard Newman.

The fashion-show replaces the lengthy dance ensemble for "Flash Appeal," and all the dancing Astaire does is solo or with Ginger. Victor Varconi and Claire Dodd are important cast. William Selzer directed.

Hull's Second Film

Henry Hull, the Broadway character star, made a notable talkie debut in "Great Expectations." His latest film, "Transient Lady," has him co-starring (nominally) with George Raymond in a story about the trouble that pops in a sleepy southern town when a beautiful young stranger comes along. It is no fault of the girl's, but the no-account brother of a powerful politician gets shot.

Hull plays the politician, a stock character. In the stock make-up of southern politicians of the stage. Frances Drake and June Clayworth are the feminine interest. Raymond is the hero. Douglas Fowley as the local half-wit and Helen Lowell and Clara Blandick as spinster sisters, are effective. Octavus Roy Cohen wrote the story, and there are several scenes of Negro comedy.

Clear, Peachy Skin Awaits Anyone Who Drinks Hot Water

Drink a glass of real hot water before breakfast to wash out poisons.

Sparkling and vivacious—merry, bright, alert—a good, clear skin and a natural, rosy, healthy complexion are assured only by pure blood. If only every man and woman could be induced to adopt the morning inside bath, what a gratifying change would take place. Instead of the thousands of sickly, anemic-looking men, women and girls, with pasty or mottled complexions, instead of the multitudes of "nervy wrecks," "rundowns," "brain fags" and pessimists we should see a virile, optimistic throng of rosy-cheeked people everywhere.

An inside bath is had by drinking each morning, before breakfast, a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to wash from the stomach, liver, kidneys and ten yards of bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour fermentations and poisons, thus cleansing, sweetening and freshening the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach.

Those subject to sick headache, biliousness, nasty breath, rheumatism, colds, and particularly those who have a pallid, sallow complexion and who are constipated very often, are urged to obtain a quarter pound of limestone phosphate at the drug store which will cost but a trifle, but is sufficient to demonstrate the quick and remarkable change in both health and appearance, awaiting those who practice internal sanitation. We must remember that inside cleanliness is more important than outside, because the skin does not absorb impurities to contaminate the blood while the pores in the thirty feet of bowels do.

PREVIEWED

Today

Broadway: "David Copperfield." If the motion picture censorship did nothing more, it at least turned the producers to the classics for material, and as an outcome, several of Dickens works have been transformed to the screen. By far the most elaborate, the most ambitious, and the most skillful attempt to recreate Dickens' amazingly lifelike characters to the talking screen is this film that boasts such names in its manufacture as Hugh Walpole, George Cukor and Howard Estabrook. A genuine triumph from every possible angle, "David Copperfield" is one of the hit pictures of this era, a stand-out presentation that follows the novel closely and with character parts so well chosen and played that they seem to walk from the very pages of Dickens' book. The story is familiar to everyone, so it can be said that the work of W. C. Fields as Mr. Micawber, of Ronald Young as Uriah Heep, of Maureen O'Sullivan as Dora, and of Frank Lawton and Freddie Bartholomew as David Copperfield as a youth and as a grown man, are performances sparkling with genius. In fact, every small part, every detail of the picture has been arranged with care and understanding. Put this one on the don't miss list.

Orpheum: "Love Time" and "The State Versus Elinor Norton." Nils Asther and Pat O'Brien are co-featured in the first picture on the double bill, a romantic story of a struggling musician who wins his way to recognition and love. "The State Versus Elinor Norton" is another of those court room melodramas where a woman's life is at stake. Claire Trevor heads the cast. "Jealousy" and "Gentlemen are Born." Nancy Carroll, who once was at the top of the movie ladder only to tumble down like all the rest, is featured in the opening talkie, a play which tries to show the workings of the germ called jealousy and how it affects the lives of people who come in contact with it. Supporting Miss Carroll are Donald Cook and George Murphy. "Gentlemen are Born," with Franchot Tone, Ann Dvorak, Jean Muir and Margaret Lindsay, is the story of four male and female efforts to find employment following graduation from college. All have things they want to do but most of them discover the hopelessness of failure. A well acted and well directed picture.

Tomorrow Broadway: "Clive of India." Robert Clive, English military hero whose actual life was stranger than any product of an imaginative author's brain, lives his exciting years before the camera in this United Artists picture that cost its producers a million dollars to create. Vibrant with color, filled with grandeur and scenic effects of striking awe, it tells the story of Robert Clive, who at twenty-one years of age, was a $25 clerk with the East India Company. He joins the army and at twenty-six young Clive was the conqueror of Southern India, at thirty-four, Lord Robert Clive of Plassey was a military genius, the talk of England in whose name he conquered India. He was also one of the richest men in the world. That is the true story of Clive, the man who carved out an empire with the sword. But there is another story, which had been elaborately woven into the motion picture on the Broadway screen. Clive fell in love while still a struggling clerk, with a girl in England he had never seen. He wrote her, asking her to become his wife. The girl had courage and perhaps a sense of humor. Anyway, she sailed for India to meet this young clerk who had expressed his love for her. While she was on her way, it took the boat a year to reach India in those days, Clive had become a conquering hero, and all India was in his hand. Margaret Lindsay, learned the truth, and was certain Clive would now disown her. On the contrary, he marries her, and together they struggle on to even greater fame. Directed by Richard Collins and features Loretta Young, Colin Clive, Caesar Romano, Mischka Auer, C. Aubrey Smith, Francis Lister and thousands of extra players. Clive died by his own hand in 1774. The film does not carry his life to its bitter ending. It stops thankfully, when Clive is at the height of his career, a power in the world.

Orpheum: "Wake Up and Dream" and "No Greater Glory." Russ Columbo, the handsome radio crooner who was accidentally killed by a gun some months ago, is the star of this, his last picture. It's a story of the show business, of actors who find the going difficult and how one of them allows success to bow to his head. June Knight is also in the cast. "No Greater Glory," released last May, this unusual movie is both clever and novel of treatment. Beguiled by a rival gang, the Paul Street Boys go through the military procedure of a regular army to protect their interests. It's grand entertainment, with George Breakston heading the cast.

Kingston: "Devil Dogs of the Air." Those two movie pals, James Cagney and Pat O'Brien, take the air for a change in their newest celluloid endeavor which tells all about the Marine flying service in glowing terms of patriotism and excitement. There isn't much of a story, just a constant flood of action caused by the seemingly endless difficulties Mr. Cagney manages to get himself into. And there is a romantic episode furnished by the pleasing presence of Margaret Lindsay and some excellent comedy offered by Frank McHugh. For those who enjoy thrills at a dozen a minute and the rough comedy of James Cagney and Pat O'Brien, this picture is something to place at the head of your don't miss list.

Because Clive of India is told in story with a picture of a girl he had never seen, the destiny of a nation was changed. For her he conquered a nation, became the hero of her heart and of a nation that had called him its savior.

Fiction can never match the strange life of this Man of Destiny, who averaged the measure of the Black Hole of Calcutta, won the Battle of Plassey with his intrepid army of battle elephants, overcame the dangers of the dreaded monsoon to lead his men to victory. From the story of Clive's one great love and his thousand dark, devil exploits, 20th Century Pictures has fashioned its most sensational production.

MODES OF THE MOMENT

Belted waistlines on slim silhouettes mark the new coats.

Liana Merwin

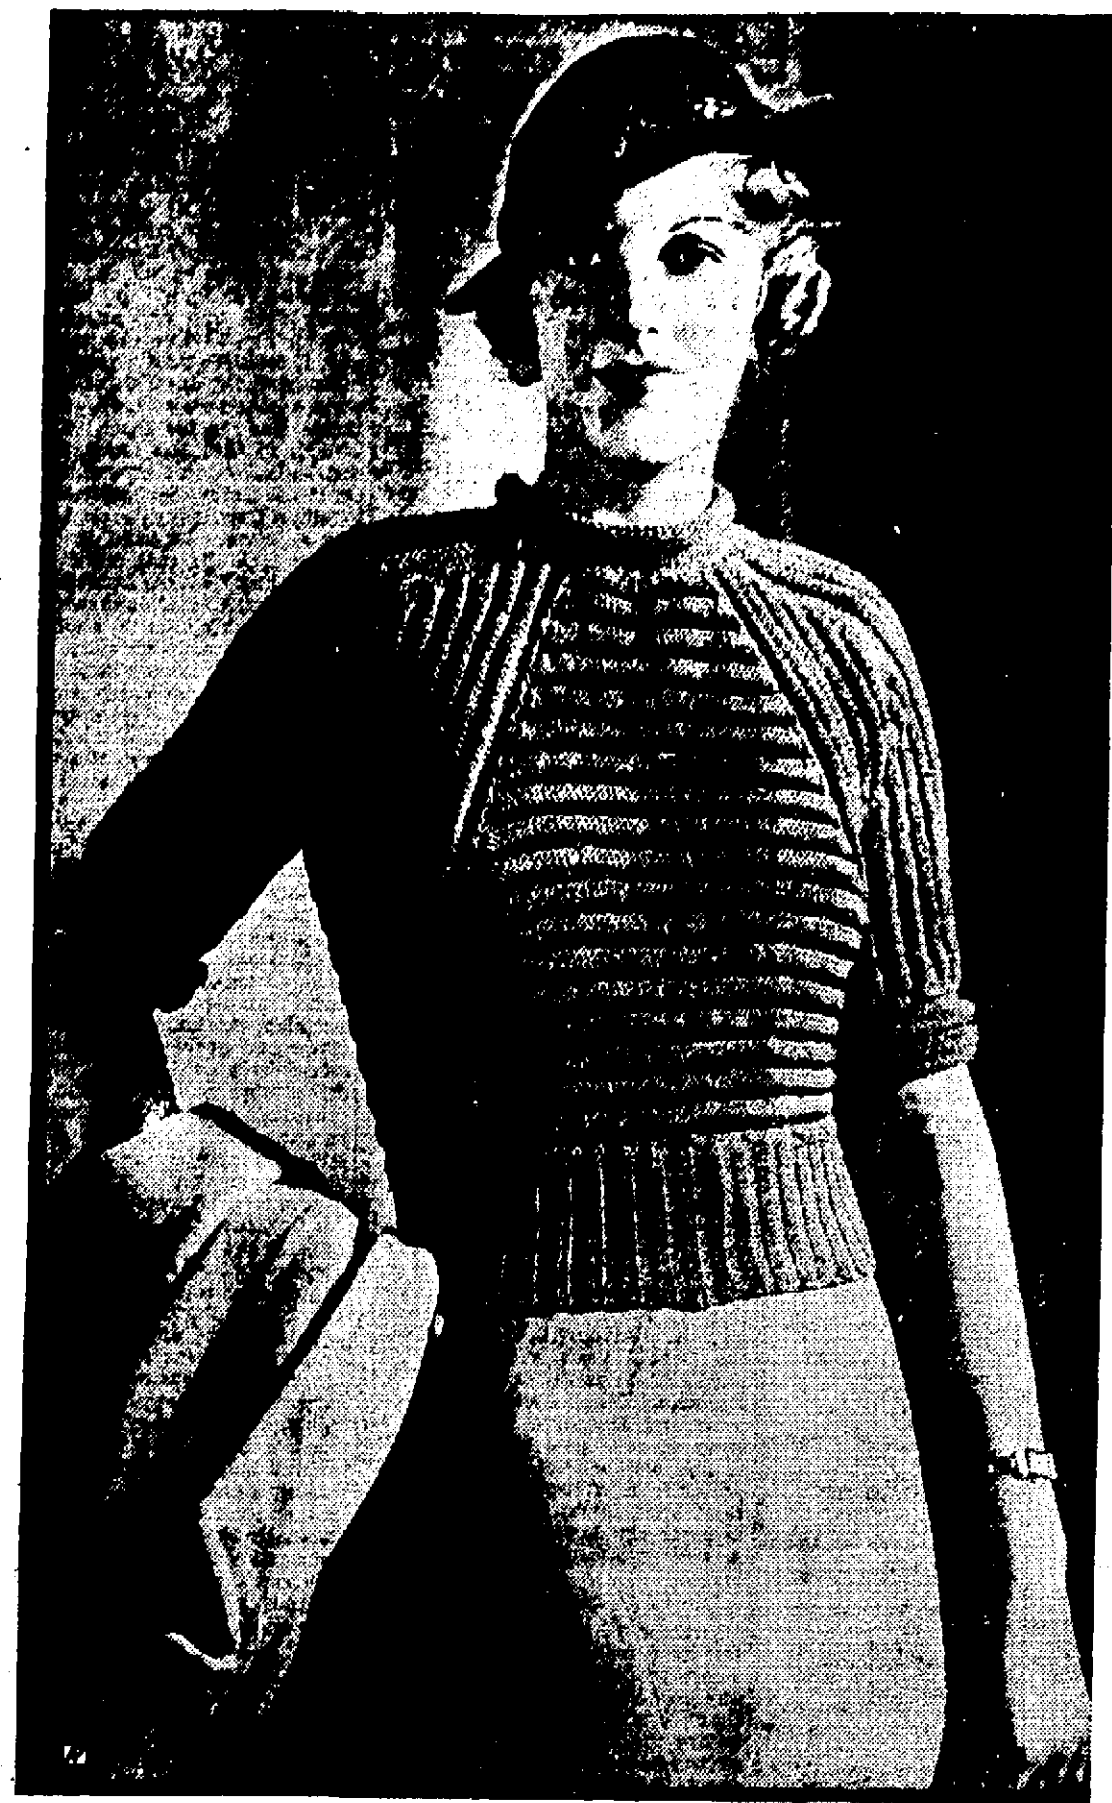

The prominence of cape modes in spring season styles is again shown by the many richly designed capes of fur in both daytime and evening types.

The fitted and squared shoulder silhouette is particularly featured and smart yoke treatments are much in evidence. There are also taffeta accents in the form of tie-scarfs, cravats or bows at the neckline, while still other models use carved composition and metal buckles. Among the favored furs, moleskin, lapin, gairak, chipmunk and kidskin are stressed for daytime, while white fox and silver fox appear in models for evening.

In the sketch above, the standing figure wears a rich and spirited hip-length cape of striped chipmunk. There is a certain swaggerish smartness in this model with its standing collar, two front pockets and ornamental fasteners of hand-apron wire.

Two views of another cape model in shorter version are sketched in the circle. This one is of Morocco brown gairak in an elbow length with fitted back, cape sleeves and wide revers at front. It has detachable stitched taffeta pull-through bow at the neckline and fastens with two ornamental buttons at front.

Measure to Aid Courts.

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 21 (AP).—Terming it the "greatest single measure which could be devised to cope with our congested court calendars," Senator John L. Buckley, New York Democrat, today had laid before the New York legislature a proposal designed to extend legal examination before trial procedure. One of the principal recommendations of the judicial council, the measure would permit any party to examine any other party, or the latter's employee or former employee, on any issue involved in a law suit prior to trial. Heretofore the plaintiff could only examine the defendant.

Milk Provision.

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 21 (AP).—Saying "it is unthinkable that the state should discontinue" the procedure at this time, Senator George R. Fearon, Republican minority leader, today called upon Governor Herbert H. Lehman to exert his influence in having the senate finance committee report favorably on his bill to appropriate $3,000,000 to provide milk for needy and undernourished children. The $1,500,000 appropriated last year is exhausted.

Talks to parents

Care Of Teeth

By BROOKE PETERS CHURCH
One of the most frequently neglected and one of the most troublesome parts of the human body is the teeth. Perhaps if they were not so neglected they would be less troublesome. Many parents feel that the care of baby teeth, since they must so soon fall out, is not essential. In point of fact it is more important than the care of second teeth.

Baby teeth should be jealously guarded from the time the first one appears, and the child itself should be trained in the habit of caring for them as soon as possible. There is no use in handing a child a tooth brush and telling it to brush its teeth. It must be taught how to do it. Teeth should be brushed from the upper gums down, and the lower gums up, and inside as well as out, twice a day. The gums should be stimulated by the brushing, as well as the enamel of the teeth cleaned. Left to itself the child's tendency is to rub across the front teeth a few times and call it a day, leaving all untouched the cracks and crannies of the mouth where the food gathers.

Every six months, whether it seems necessary or not, the child should go to the dentist to have its teeth looked over and thoroughly cleaned. This regular treatment will make the first teeth last longer and so prevent much of the tooth-decay and malformation of the jaw which is so common in later life.

If the baby teeth fall out too soon, the jaw is apt to shrink and leave too little room for the second teeth to come into. The result is overcrowding and a change in the contour of mouth and jaw.

Teach the child and insist on the need of regularity in cleaning its teeth, until it is uncomfortable with a mouth which is not scrupulously clean.

Plan for Theatre.

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 21 (AP).—A stirring plea to "save the living theatre" was before legislators today as they considered a bill opening the way for Sunday performances of musical comedies and dramas. William A. Brady, veteran actor and stage manager, who was introduced as the "Dean of the American Theatre," said it would result in the opening in six months of 60 theatres in New York. "Six day bike races are legal on Sunday, movie theatres are legal—everything but the living theatre, the finest amusement of them all," he cried. Frank Gillmore, gray-haired president of the Actors Equity, led the fight against the bill, which he claimed would deprive actors of their Sundays at home and might lead to seven-day working weeks.

Sees Good Market For Fruit Juices

Ithaca, N. Y., Feb. 21.—When bottlers of carbonated beverages appreciate the fine flavor, attractive appearance, and high nourishing value of clarified and carbonated fruit juices, an important new outlet for New York state fruits will open, said Professor Donald K. Tressler of the state agricultural experiment station at Geneva in a farm and home week talk.

The American public likes carbonated beverages, he pointed out, and consumes enormous quantities of them. Unfortunately for the fruit industries, the bottlers of these beverages use very little, if any, fruit juice other than that from citrus fruits.

Professor Tressler discussed elder in detail but added that other fruit juices which should find an important market are grape, cherry, pear, currant, plum, prune, and rhubarb. In Michigan, cherry juice beverages are offered for sale at many roadside stands. Rhubarb, also, was said to offer attractive possibilities, because a pleasing beverage may be made by diluting it with carbonated water, and it blends well with other fruit juices. A small amount of oxalic acid, however, must be removed before rhubarb juice is used in beverages.

As California has made the country "orange juice conscious," so emphasis on juices of New York fruits should increase the demand greatly for these products, the speaker concluded.

Reveals Shorthand Used in Egypt Centuries Ago

Proof that shorthand much like the modern article was used in Egypt at least sixteen centuries ago and probably much earlier has been collected by H. J. M. Milne, of the British Museum, in London. Including an ancient shorthand dictionary written on papyrus, parts of what must have been some student's exercise sheet like a modern stenographer's notebook, but written on wax, and finally a contract between an intending student and stenographic business college.

The language of the shorthand documents is not Egyptian, but Greek, says a writer in the Baltimore Sun that language having displaced ancient Egyptian several centuries before these shorthand documents were written, which is believed to have been about 550 A. D.

The principle on which the ancient shorthand was constructed is much the same as today. Simple signs, easy to write and easily connected with each other, were used to represent the ordinary Greek letters, and thus the sounds of Greek speech. Greek being a language in which the sound and the letter agree much more closely than in English.

What now are called word signs were used for common words, leaving out a large part of each word and writing for example, only the first and last letters. Some whole phrases in common use, such as the ornate phrases for greeting and ending letters were treated in the same way. The business college contract shows that the student was to pay 40 drachmas in advance, equivalent to about $10. Another 40 drachmas were to be paid when the boy had mastered the shorthand text book and a third 40 drachmas when he was able to write fluent shorthand and "read it faultlessly."

Food in Tins

The method of preserving food in tins is probably one of the greatest inventions in the times. It has permitted man to store his food in any quantity and at any time, thus relieving him of his dependence upon harvest and local supply. Canned food for his armies, it has been said, would have enabled Napoleon to conquer the world.—Collier's Weekly.

GIANT PANDA BAGGED IN CHINA

This ghoulish animal with the dark circles around his eyes is a giant panda, bagged in China by members of the Born Sage, Y. expedition. It is shown with a native guide. Sage gave part of the credit for this rare kill to a brilliant black dog that chased the wild animal from a thicket toward the hunting party. (Associated Press Photo)

BARBARA BELL FASHION PATTERNS

Pattern No. 1598-B

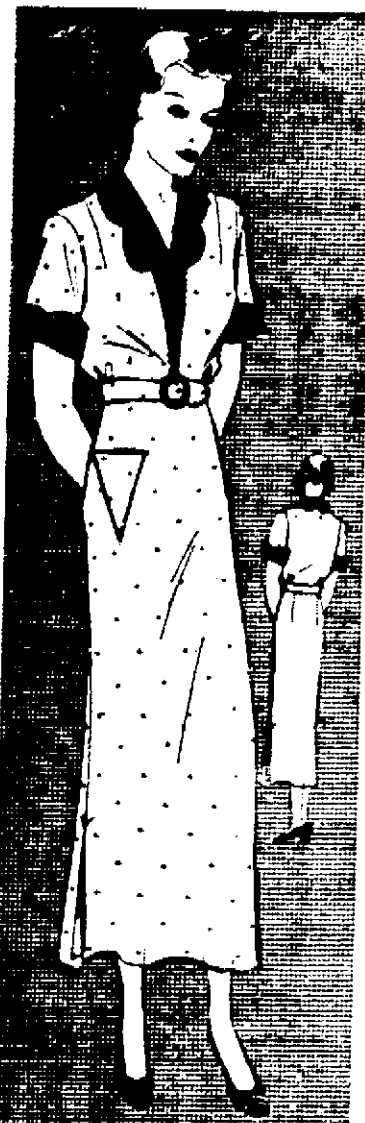

Percal Dress for Spring House Work

Mention of house work brings percale quickly to mind. Here is a dress made of it. It is a model which may well be included in your house-dress wardrobe, for of its kind it is perfect. The waist is plain, but for a vestee (slashed to the third button), and scalloped collar and cuffs of bright contrast. The skirt is correspondingly simple. Flat pleats in the side-seams for comfort in striding, and a clever assortment of darts are points which appeal to seasoned house workers.

Touches of solid contrast give an added smartness to wash frocks, this year. In this model the dot in the percale is matched up with a monotone of waffle weave—very attractive. Similar effects are obtainable with other materials, too. Seersucker combinations are interesting. And so are peasant prints with plain fabrics such as cotton broadcloth, poplin, pique, men's shirting, gingham, dimity and lawn.

Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1598-B is designed in sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46. Size 36 requires about 3 1/2 yards of 36 inch material. 5 yards of 36 inch material.

Tomorrow: Afternoon dress with butterfly treatment.

YOUNGER GENERATION CARRIES ON

Father may be famous—his name may glitter in the bright lights along Broadway or his face may provide laughs for millions of movie fans—but daughter isn't doing so badly either. Several daughters of famous fathers and notable mothers of the stage and screen are reaching toward stardom of their own right—for example, Carol (above, left) and Dorothy (lower left), daughters of Fred Stone; Ethel Barrymore's Colt (above, right), daughter of Ethel Barrymore; and Mary Rogers (lower right), daughter of the inimitable Will, of lasso-throwing, gum-chewing fame. In County Granges

Highland
Highland, Feb. 21.—The program prepared by the Highland Grange lecturer, Mrs. Bradford Freer, opened Tuesday night by singing, "Columbia the Gem of the Ocean." This was followed by Mrs. Eli Merritt's reading of the life of Abraham Lincoln and reciting the poem, "The Hand that Rocks the Cradle is the Hand that Rules the World." William Clarke of the Farm Bureau gave a talk on raising apples; Mrs. Mabel Schneider gave a monologue, "Forty Years Ago," followed by a recitation, "Truthful George," two songs by Albert Shaw accompanied on the mandolin by his daughter, Miss Charlotte Shaw, "Home on the Range," and "I'll See You Home Kathleen." The life of Washington was read by Mrs. Minnie Stiller and Mrs. Eugenia Sherwood gave, "Lincoln the Attorney." Then came the bean race with Richard Dowd and Hudson Covert tied for honors. Mrs. Louis Gruner won the ladies' race and Charlotte Shaw won for the juvenile members. Games of cards followed. There were two guests, Milo F. Winchester of the agricultural department of the local high school, a member of the Grange at Amenia, and William Clarke of Lake Katrine Grange. The refreshment committee were: Mr. and Mrs. John Maroldt, Mrs. Margaret Maroldt, Mrs. Marie Thatcher, Miss Evelyn Shafer, Mrs. Emma Bradt, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bell. There were 44 present and the master, Howard Mackey, presided. The next card party sponsored by the Grange will be on March 1 in the Grange hall.

Stone Ridge
A novelty program in the form of an old-fashioned social was enjoyed by the members of Stone Ridge Grange on Monday evening. Everyone had a jolly time playing well-known games as: Going to Jerusalem, Grunt, Piggy Grunt and Neighbors. Old-fashioned gingerbread with whipped cream and coffee were very much enjoyed after a strenuous period of fun. The program ended with a "sing-song of old-time tunes while sitting by the tables in the candle-light." During the business meeting preceding the social, one new candidate was welcomed as a member. The members presented Mrs. Ross Osterhoudt, acting secretary, with a birthday cake baked by one of her many friends.

The next regular meeting will be held on Monday, March 4, at 8 o'clock. The attendance contest, which was started at the first January meeting, will end at that time. The losing team will be responsible for the entertainment and refreshments at the meeting on March 18.

The literary program will be devoted to a travel talk on South America given by A. R. Hall-Davis of Accord. His subject will be, "New Granada." All members are asked to make a special effort to be present and hear this interesting speaker.

Formost Club Dance

The Formost Social Club will hold a dance at Spinnys, Port Ewen, on Saturday evening, February 23. There will be a small admission charge.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

CLAUDE S. JACOBSON

New York, Feb. 21 (AP)—Conflicting movements persisted in the financial markets today and speculative forces exhibited more than the usual amount of caution.

The activity in shares was considerably under that of the preceding session. Among gainers of fractions to a point or more were American Safety Razor, Meets Machine, Evans Products, Briggs Manufacturing, Liggett & Myers, "B", American Telephone, North American, U. S. Smelting, American Smelting and Refining, American Smelting and Refining, and Ferro De Pasco. A major fractional advance was scored by Loew's.

The Baldwin Locomotive stocks had rather sinking spells, the preferred losing 5 points and the common yielded a point or so. American Locomotive common fell nearly 2, as did U. S. Steel Preferred. Union Pacific was off a point, and small declines were shown by American Can, Case, U. S. Steel Common, American Tobacco "B", Sears Roebuck, Montgomery Ward and Pennsylvania. Such bell-wethers as Consolidated Gas, Westinghouse, du Pont, General Electric, General Motors, N. Y. Central and Santa Fe were about where they finished Wednesday.

Quotations given by Parker, McElroy & Co., members, N. Y. Stock Exchange, 120 Broadway, New York city; branch office, 213 Wall street.

Washington, Feb. 21 (AP)—Leland R. Andrews, flying an American Airways ship, crossed the Washington airport at 1:12 p. m. (eastern time) on his 21st birthday, and 34 seconds after he left Burbank field, at Los Angeles, this morning in an effort to set a new trans-continental speed record.

Two American Girls Plunge To Death

sure from the slipstream of the propeller would be sufficiently strong to hold the door shut against the strength of two women.

Elizabeth was 23 years old; Jane was 20. They had stayed for the last three or four days at a hotel in the west-end of London.

One of the attendants there said: "For the last day or two they appeared to be very upset about something. They seemed rather hysterical and cried a lot. I have no idea as to what was the matter or what was the reason for their tears."

During September, the two were said to have stayed at a private address in the west-end.

The two letters found in the plane were addressed one to the father and one to the mother. The police took charge of the letters, then sealed the airplane's doors after they had examined the 40 pounds of baggage apparently left on the plane by the sisters.

The airplane is a biplane with two engines and with seats for eight passengers.

The witnesses who saw the plunge to death said that the bodies first appeared to be "pieces of paper" blown in the wind.

Pilot Kirtan said the sisters appeared to be agitated when they reached the airport preparatory to boarding the plane.

Consul Franklin C. Gowan, of the United States consulate in London, took charge of the case on behalf of the United States officials. The inquest, which will be conducted under the supervision of Coroner C. E. Lewis, Brentwood, will probably be held next week.

In Service Since 1919

Washington, Feb. 21 (AP)—Court Du Bois, consul general at Naples, has been in the American diplomatic service since 1919 and has served at Paris, Port Said, Batavia and Washington.

He was chief of the visa office in the State Department from 1924 to 1927.

He has been consul general at Naples since July, 1931.

The State Department has had no dispatches from the consulate general in Naples or the embassy in London concerning the death of his two daughters.

Jane Du Bois was said by Washington friends to have suffered from acute and chronic asthma for nearly 10 years. Elizabeth was described as being particularly close to her sister. Both attended the Friends' School here.

Was Born in Hudson

Hudson, N. Y., Feb. 21 (AP)—Court Du Bois, whose two daughters plunged to their death from a plane over Umpinster, England, today, was born and reared here.

When Du Bois went to war against Germany in 1917 he sent the two little girls Elizabeth and Jane and Mrs. Du Bois to Hudson to reside during his absence. They had lived in California. None of the family returned to this city after the World War.

Du Bois was valedictorian of the Hudson High School graduating class of 1899. His father was Dr. John Du Bois and the family was an old one of this vicinity. There are no relatives here now.

Du Bois attended the Billmore Forestry School in North Carolina, served in the United States Forestry Service and studied for the diplomatic service at Stanford University.

Du Bois' three sisters, aunts of the girls, are Mrs. Fred Almond of Palo Alto, Cal.; Mrs. Allen Campbell of Bronxville, N. Y.; and Miss Rachel Du Bois of Boston.

The Woman's Tribute To Husband, Two Sons

Boston, Feb. 11 (AP).—A $5.70 meal ticket was mute evidence today of the eating capacity of a little, unassuming woman of middle age.

The woman, according to a waitress in a market district restaurant, entered the establishment at supper time last night, settled herself comfortably at a table, and began to order.

First she asked for three helpings of roast beef with potatoes and gravy; then in quick succession came an order of lobster, one of halibut, six of stewed corn, two of peas, two of turnips, two bottles of ginger ale, a bottle of pickles, an order of apple sauce, and three cups of coffee.

The woman, a waitress said, has been ordering similar suppers at regular intervals during the last six years, and in season, adds two dozen ears of corn.

Sometimes she completes her meal with helpings of pudding.

A waitress said she had heard the woman's husband and two sons were killed during the war, and that periodically she ordered three complete suppers and ate them all as a memorial to them.

She resented being watched or questioned about her prodigious appetite, the waitress added.

Urges Wider Use Of Famous Sites

ITHACA, N. Y., Feb. 21.—A hope that wider use be made of historic sites in the Mohawk, Champlain, and Hudson valleys through the cooperation of the educational system of the state was expressed in a statement to a farm and home week audience at Cornell by A. S. Hopkins, assistant director of lands and forests, state conservation department.

"I believe that untold good might be done if funds were available to link these historic areas with the state's public school system."

Mr. Hopkins mentioned sixteen historic and scientific places in those regions and traced the history of each. Elsewhere throughout the state, he added, are many other similar spots under police control whose historical background should be familiar to residents of the empire state.

Mr. Hopkins also mentioned the coming fiftieth anniversary celebration of the establishment of the forest commission and the Adirondack and Catskill forest preserve. Plans for this celebration, he said, are being carried out by a committee of one hundred, appointed by the conservation commissioner. This celebration will revolve around a public dinner in New York city on May 15, and a celebration about the middle of September in the vicinity of Lake Placid. In addition, the plans include local celebrations throughout the state in charge of county committees yet to be appointed. In the celebrations, the 4-H clubs, schools, boy scouts, girl scouts, and similar organizations will take part.

Lights of New York

by L. L. STEVENSON

The loan sharks of New York lie in wait for their victims on street corners, up town, in mid-town, in the financial district, indeed all over the city. They prey on those in monetary distress. They are always willing to accommodate and their business conditions are extremely simple—far more simple than most legitimate loan agencies. The borrower merely signs a note. No co-signer is necessary and no endorser—just a name on a piece of paper. The shark has other security. On his pay roll are strong arm men. If the borrower doesn't pay up on time, things happen to him. None of those things are pleasant. In fact, more than likely, the victim has to go to a hospital—or be taken to one. Many of the sharks do not mind a loss now and then. The battered-up borrower is an excellent object lesson to those who otherwise might be inclined to be delinquent.

Profits of the business are enormous. The usual rate is "six for five." That is, the victim who borrows $5 pays $6 at the end of the week. That figure is 20 per cent a week. Often the victim merely pays the interest. That too is all right with the shark. Sometimes the principal is paid and the interest goes into a new loan. That, too, is all right since another 20 per cent is added to the first. But as has been said, woe to the victim who fails to meet his obligation at the time specified. Excuses are not considered. What the shark wants is cash and his strong arm men are always ready to go into action.

Victims are loath to make complaints. Recently down in the financial district, a twenty-year-old clerk was beaten up. He refused to sign a complaint, evidently fearing the consequences. Even his failure to do so didn't save him. When he left the court, three men attacked him—the shark joining in with his thugs. They didn't get away with it in that instance as a detective had followed the delinquent borrower and witnessed the encounter. So the three were arrested and are now being held for the grand jury on a felonious assault charge. There is other evidence against them than the testimony of the officer—the battered face of the clerk.

Arrests of unlicensed loan sharks are few as a result of the fear of their victims. Occasionally, however, something else happens. Not so long ago, a bullet-riddled body was found up in the Bronx. It was that of one of the "six for five" boys. The police are inclined to believe that a victim settled his account with a gun.

She is a young matron just a bit given to affliction. Her three-year-old is a bright child and she insists that he understand and speaks French more readily than he does English. "Mon fil!" she exclaimed during a conversational lull in her Riverside drive home. "Regardez le bateau." With that she pointed and the little fellow ran to the window and gazed at the Hudson. "Oh, mommy, see the boat!" he cried—and there was no further reference to the French language on the part of the mother.

The metropolis has a considerable Indian population, there being about 400 full blood members of various American tribes who make their homes here. Most of them are in the know business in its various forms and thus appear from time to time in their native regalia. Others are engaged in various lines of business and scorn feathers.

Wonder if I've told Mal, Chester B. McCormick's Indian story before? It was in the old days in Oklahoma when prices were high. The Indian went into a grocery store and asked for a quarter's worth of cheese. As the grocer cut it, so thin was the slice that the cheese curled with the knife. "Ugh, pret' near mixed um," commented the redskin.

Says Divorce Laws, Not Marriage, Need Fixing

Akron, Ohio.—Greed and selfishness cause most divorces, believes Domestic Relations Judge Oscar A. Hunsicker. "People on the verge of divorce might as well admit they have made a mess of their own lives, and look to the welfare of their children," he said. "The solution of the divorce evil does not lie in stricter marriage laws but in better divorce laws. Something should be done to prevent the throwing of children upon society."

FOUR-DOOR TOURING SEDANS

F. O. B. Factory—tax and special equipment extra

THERE'S a little bit of the 1935 Hupmobile in most of the fine cars at the Show.

One car pays Hupp the compliment of borrowing the lithe sweep of its fender. Another nearly matches Hupp in the generous width of its seats. A third car almost achieves Hupmobile's "open-car-vision" in its closed models.

But Hupmobile alone offers you all of those features... and more. Hupmobile offers you the only motor car, at any price, which combines true air-line efficiency with beauty and dignity of design.

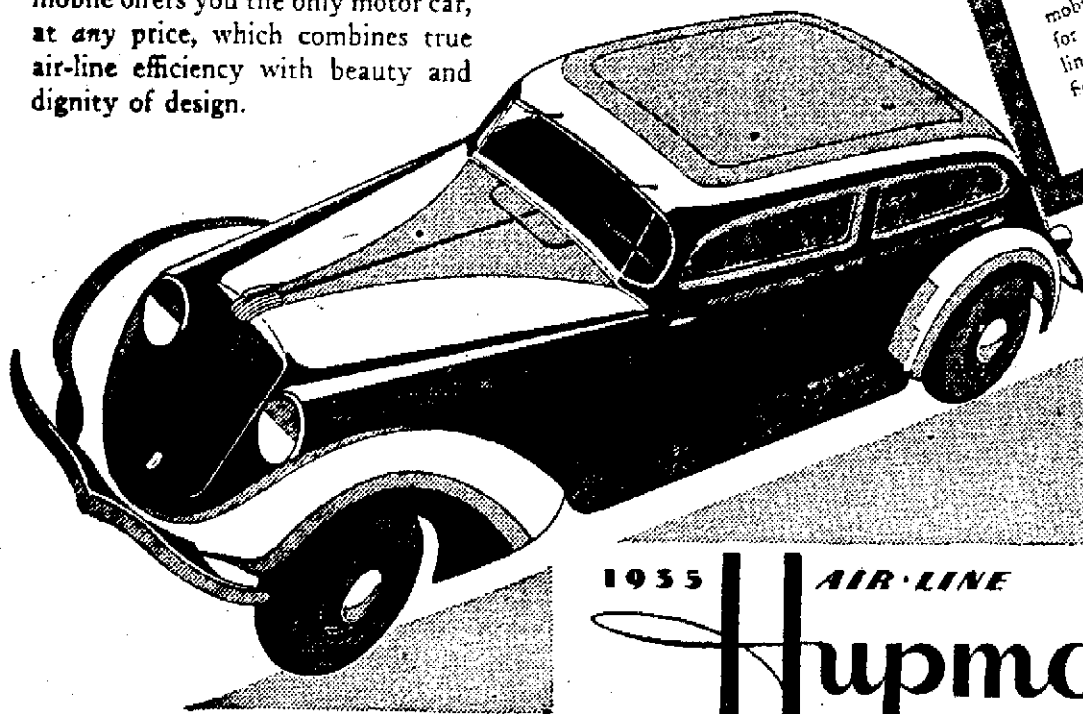

And every one of these cars is built with the precision engineering and mechanical integrity for which Hupmobiles have been known for more than a quarter of a century.

Whether you are looking for the best car or the best bargain in the 1935 Show... you're apt to find them both at the Hupp Exhibit.

That's why we say... See the Hupp first and you've seen the Show!

OUT OF PONTIAC'S GREAT MODERN PLANT

comes A New Low Priced Six

COMPANION CAR TO A FINER, MORE LUXURIOUS, LOW-PRICED EIGHT

Scarcely had Pontiac dealers opened their showrooms on announcement morning when the news traveled over America—"Pontiac has done what builders of low-priced cars have tried to do for years. Pontiac has brought fine car quality and performance into the low-price field, and combined them with economy and dependability few cars at any price can approach." But no rumor, however flattering, can do justice to the new low-priced six from Pontiac. The public promptly christened it the most beautiful thing on wheels. The new bodies represent the greatest safety advance in a decade—solid steel "Turret-Top" Bodies by Fisher. Nor is that all. The Pontiac Six gives you the super-safety of big, triple-sealed hydraulic brakes—the extra long life of silver-alloy engine bearings—smoother, livelier six-cylinder performance, and numerous other advancements which make the price of the car phenomenal.

How can Pontiac give so generously of everything motorists want and need? The answer lies in its great plant. Only a plant so modern could build a low-priced car so fine.

Official Standards For Maple Products

Albany, Feb. 21.—Establishment of official standards for maple products, announced by Commissioner Charles H. Baldwin of the State Department of Agriculture and Markets after six months of investigations and hearings, is seen by marketing experts as a boon to New York state producers and a distinct benefit to consumers of maple syrup and allied products.

Commissioner Charles H. Baldwin emphasized the fact that the use of the new grades is optional but when used they must be used correctly.

Public hearings which were attended by producers and dealers were conducted last month at Cortland, Wellsville, Salamanca, Jamestown, Walton, Potsdam, Gouverneur and Lowville by E. S. Bird, Senior Assistant in Marketing, Bureau of Markets.

Director Webster J. Birdsall of the Bureau of Markets described the establishment of maple grading standards as "a genuinely progressive step to guide consumers and aid materially in promotion of New York state products."

The designation of grades is pursuant to Article 12-A of the Agriculture and Markets Law. It is provided that "fancy" syrup shall be pure maple sap syrup free from foreign materials, with a density of 36 degrees Baume hydrometer reading, and weigh 11 pounds net to the gallon. It shall not have a sour, budded or scorched flavor. Color is specified but if the syrup is cloudy it cannot attain a grade higher than "No. 1." Grades 1, 2 and 3 are based on the color of the pure product, the darker color being graded lower. United States color standards are invoked.

Attached to the official announcement is a note that all hydrometer readings shall be made at a temperature of 60 degrees Fahrenheit. Standard density syrup will show 36 degrees Baume reading at 60 degrees Fahrenheit. To allow for unavoidable variations, a tolerance of one-half degree above or below 36 degrees is allowed, the order states.

Sugar grades correspond to syrup grades. "No. 1" sugar being made from "No. 1" syrup, and so on. If sugar is scorched in its preparation, it is not to be considered as coming within the sugar grades.

"All containers of maple products packed or repacked within this state," the regulations provide, "when sold or offered for sale on the basis of the New York State Official Grades for Maple Products, shall be plainly and legibly marked with one of the official grade designations. In addition to the grade designation, the container shall also be plainly and legibly marked to show the name and address of the packer or person or persons under whose authority the maple products were packed."

Only maple products made from maple sap produced within the state of New York are eligible to display the New York state grades.

Practically that producers will appreciate the opportunity to grade their maple products according to official standards, Director Birdsall said.

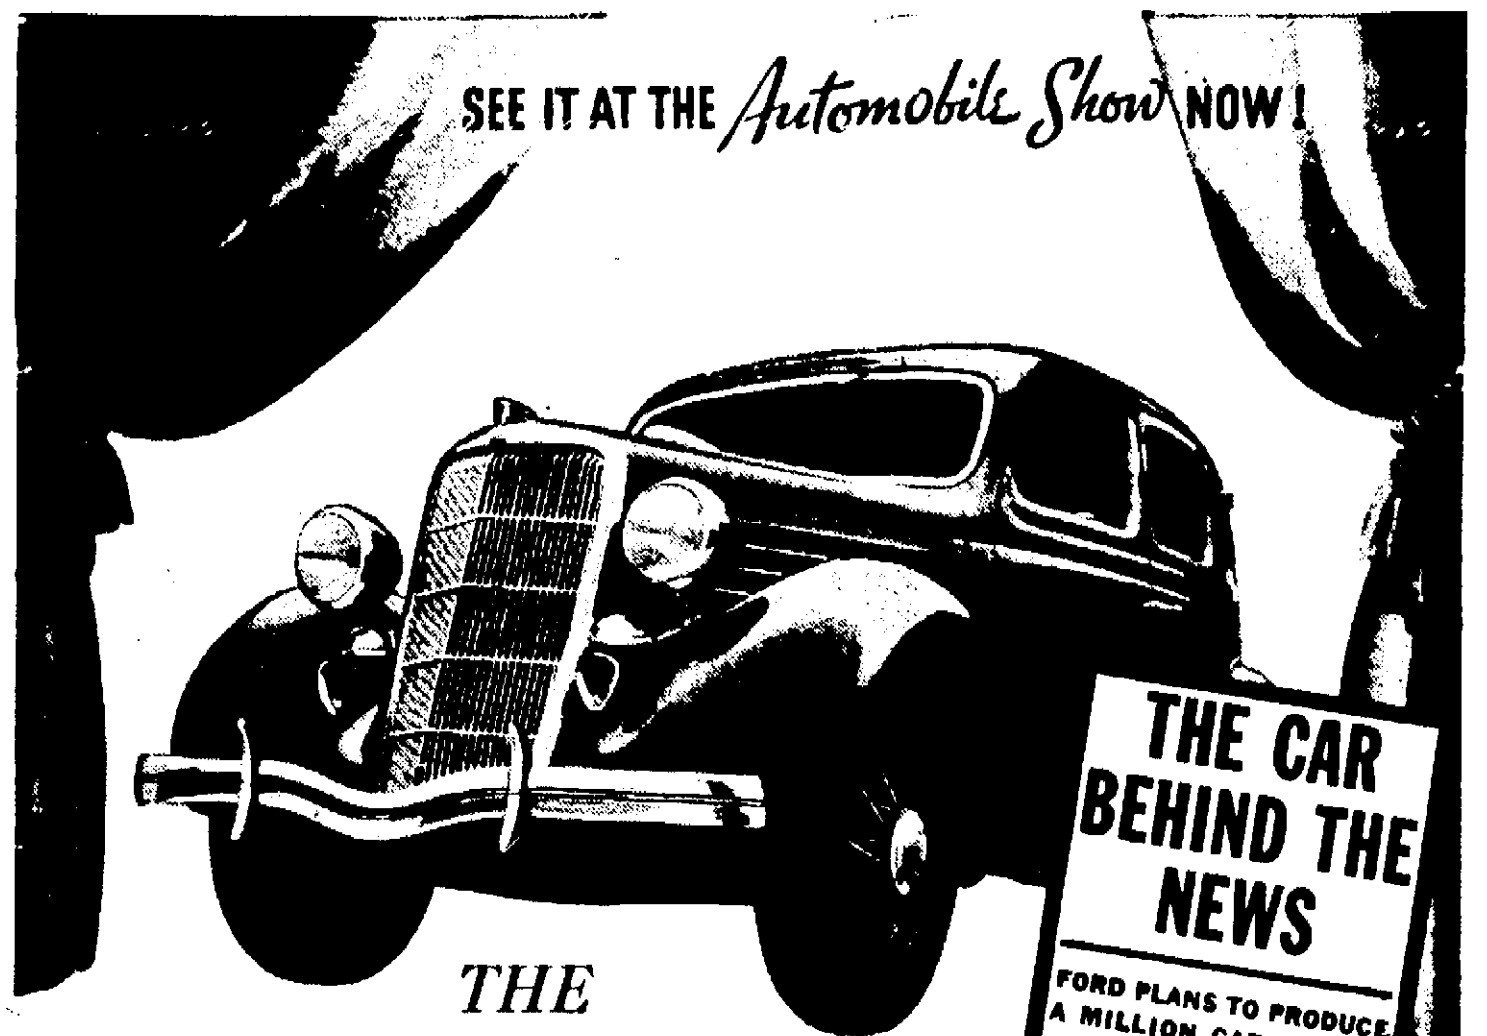

"Our experience has shown that producers of the better type are quick to take advantage of official standards because of the increased prestige gained by their products."

Master colors to guide packers of maple products were obtained from the United States Bureau of Chemistry and Soils by L. J. Cross, state chemist at the State College of Agriculture, Ithaca, and duplicates may be obtained from him. The color sets are good only for two years and fade on long exposure to light, the chemist explained. Copies of the official standards may be obtained from the Department of Agriculture and Markets at Albany or through county Farm Bureau offices.

THE New Ford V-8 with Comfort Zone Riding

WHAT is there about this new car that makes Ford believe a million people will want it?

Your question will turn into an exclamation of surprise when you go to the Automobile Show and see the new Ford V-8 for 1935.

Here is a car—low in price, economical to run, and yet built to meet every modern motoring need.

It meets the demand for style—with streamlined bodies and new interior finish.

For roominess—with wider seats, front and rear. Large luggage compartments.

It gives you the handling ease you need today. Easier to steer and park. It has stability at all speeds. The new brakes and clutch operate with extremely light foot pressure. A car that makes driving a new pleasure!

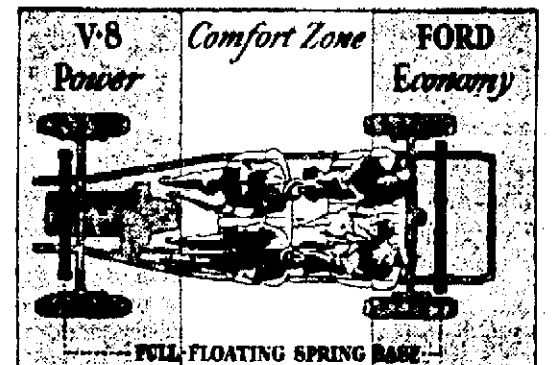

But your greatest surprise will be the new Comfort Zone Ride. This is the result of a major engineering development, exclusive with Ford—the Full-floating Springbase with Comfort Zone Seating. Now even back seat passengers get "front seat riding comfort!"

It has taken more than 100 improvements to make the 1935 Ford V-8 the car it is. And remember this: they have been added to the proved 85-horsepower, V-8 engine. Then you will realize why millions are already talking about this new car value—why Ford believes a million motorists will own it in 1935.

And secondly, the famous Airflow... the car that shattered 29 A. A. A. Contest Board records for speed... won a Grand Prix at Monte Carlo for beauty... now brilliantly restyled!

The new Airstream was designed by the same engineers who built the record-breaking Airflow. It embodies many of the principles and features of Airflow design.

It has a 93-horsepower engine... with amazing performance and stamina.

Due to application of the principle of weight distribution embodied in the Airflow, independent front wheel suspension, and new tapered leaf rear springs... the new Airstream DeSoto gives you a new kind of ride. Bumps and jolts can't possibly reach you.

As for the new Airflow... you must see it for yourself to know how truly beautiful it is.

It has been completely restyled. Interiors are smarter than ever... with new fabrics and the most exciting modern fittings.

The new DeSotos are now on display. Go see them both. This year there's only one question... "Which DeSoto will it be?"

Restyled front-end of new Airstream DeSoto still retains its streamlined efficiency.

FLASHES OF LIFE SKETCHED IN BRIEF

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS

Public Servant.

Charleston, West Virginia.—Ernest Pugh's automobile stalled near the state capitol, so he called on three obliging passersby to do a little pushing.

In a letter of apology to Gov. H. G. Kump he wrote: "To few in this life does it fall their lot to look in the rear vision mirror and see there reflected the face of the governor of a great state pushing on the back of their car."

Scientific Deduction.

Toronto, Ont.—Serving beer in a beverage room is a "hazardous occupation," a Toronto insurance company actuary found, and the life expectancy of such an employee is less than average.

"Perhaps," added the actuary, "the theory is that beer is too accessible to the waiter."

Someone Should Know.

Chicago.—Mrs. Victoria Rurek appeared before Superior Judge Rudolph F. Desori for an increase in support payments from her former husband, Stanley.

"How many children?" asked the judge. "Three," said Mrs. Rurek. "Five," said Stanley. "Three," insisted Mrs. Rurek. "I ought to know,"

Puzzled, the judge continued the case until a master in chancery could take a census.

Too Literary.

Milwaukee.—The dogs in Milwaukee are altogether too literary to suit Joseph V. Cargill, assistant director of the public library. He reported more books mutilated by dogs during the last year than during any previous ten-year period. One woman, who objected to a repair charge, said:

"Toodles didn't know any better. He probably was hungry."

LAMSON'S SECOND TRIAL STARTS

The campus mystery centering about the bathtub murder of Allene Lamson is being revived as David Lamson, once convicted of slaying his young wife, goes on trial again in San Jose, Calif. U.P.A. Progress In Year and a Half

About a year and a half ago a group of 40 independent retail grocers of the city of Kingston formed an organization called the Ulster County Provisional Dealers Association, or U. P. A. The object of this association was to make possible greater food values in their stores through cooperative buying.

Each week this association has used a page in The Freeman to acquaint their customers with their special food values. The U. P. A. through watching the market conditions and wisdom in buying has progressed to the point of buying the foods in carload lots. The association has always been for quality merchandise at the lowest possible price.

WORLD-WIDE NOVENA IN HONOR OF SAINT JOSEPH

Following a yearly practice begun in 1928, there will be again this year a solemn world-wide novena at Saint Joseph's Oratory, Montreal, extending from March 10 to 19. To join in the novena, one has only to send his intentions to Saint Joseph's Shrine, Cote-des-Neiges, Montreal, and they will be placed before the statue of the saint during the novena. A medal and novena leaflet are available on request. Hundreds of thousands throughout the world participate in the novena.

New York State Youth Conference

Discussion of "Youth Building a Christian World" under skilled leadership will feature the sessions of the New York State Youth Conference at Troy, February 22-24, to be attended by several of the youth leaders representing all Ulster county. Announcement of program features was announced today by Roger Mable, president of the Ulster County Christian Youth Council.

Speakers to be heard at the State Youth Conference will include: Dr. Samuel L. Hamilton, professor of religious education at New York University, who is director of religious education of the New York East Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church; Dr. Edmund B. Chaffee, director of Labor Temple, a Presbyterian religious and social welfare center in New York City; and Dr. Ralph W. Sockman, minister of Christ Methodist Episcopal Church, Park avenue, New York City, and former president of the greater New York Federation of Churches. A number of ministers and other adult leaders will conduct discussions on timely issues now facing Christian individuals and the churches. These include youth's attitude toward war and the economic order, promoting the ideal Christ's home, and helping to solve the liquor problem. Dr. Hamilton will lead an advanced group in discovering the basis on which one's faith and philosophy of life may be established.

PORT EWEN

Port Ewen, Feb. 21.—The Epworth League annual birthday and Washington costume party will be held in the church house at 8 o'clock this evening. If possible those attending are asked to wear a costume representing Washington's time.

The Misses Wilma Schweigel and Shirley Fowler are confined to their homes with measles.

Choir rehearsal will be held in the Methodist Episcopal Church Friday evening. The preacher at the service at the Methodist Episcopal Church Sunday morning, February 24, will be the Rev. Joseph W. Chasey, D. D., superintendent of the Kingston district. A worthwhile message may be expected.

AMERICA NEEDED THIS HIGH-SPEED SAFETY CAR

Auto Show Crowds To See the New 1935 Plymouth

This New Car Offers You:

- New high-efficiency Engine... more power on 12% to 20% less gas and oil.
- New Torpedo-type Safety-Steel Body... safest body construction known.
- New Hydraulic Brakes stop quicker. Centrifuge Drums on all models.
- Synco-Silent Transmission. New Clutch needs 30% less pedal pressure.

"Look at All Three" at the Auto Show. Compare Plymouth with the others.

It's a completely New Car, Designed from the Ground up, to meet Today's Traffic Needs.

THE IMPORTANT thing to see at the Auto Show this year is Plymouth's new High-Speed Safety Car. It's an entirely new kind of automobile.

Actually, it's the first car that was ever built to meet the urgent demand for GREATER SAFETY... on congested streets and in fast-moving highway traffic.

But the vital news about this car lies in the engineering story behind it.

First, Plymouth engineers improved the engine. Gave it more power, not alone for greater speed, but for lightning get-away and quick mobility.

Next, they did everything to make driving easier on the driver.

With new Synco-Silent Transmission, all gears shift noiselessly. And the famous Plymouth Hydraulic Brakes have been given longer life.

"Floating Ride"; What it Does

Through new weight distribution, the development of Mola Steel front springs and a new sway eliminator... the new Plymouth simply glides over the bumps.

As for appearance, that's self-evident. The new Plymouth is perfectly beautiful.

When you look inside, you'll marvel at the extra room... the new comfort that five full-sized people can now enjoy.

And you'll feel safe and secure in the knowledge that you're riding in a body of STEEL... reinforced with steel.

See the new 1935 Plymouth today at any Dodge, De Soto or Chrysler showroom.

Insurance companies say the average speed of cars today is 20 miles an hour faster than in 1925.

The hanging of the new electric sign before the Highland Theatre Tuesday was suddenly stopped when the front of the brick building started to topple, caused, it is said, by the weight of the sign. Work is at a standstill until it is known whether the front will have to come down and be rebuilt. There were several inches of the front which changed position. The theatre plans to hold its opening on Friday night.

David Corwin, a student at the Albany Law School, spent the week-end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Corwin.

Mrs. Victor Salvatore entertained the Easy Aces Club on Friday afternoon.

The card party to be given by the Hose Company for the benefit of the milk fund, was indefinitely postponed, a decision made at the meeting of the company Tuesday evening. Further plans for the annual banquet were made. The officers of the Clintondale Fire Company are expected, also several from Poughkeepsie, including Chief Noll and William H. Frank. The Hill Billy band from Walden will provide the entertainment.

Milo Winchester, head of the agriculture department in the high school, attended the Farm and Home week at Cornell University last week. The party, Douglas Freer, Michael Callo, Lorenzo diOrto, John Mazzetti, William Gaffney and Mr. Winchester, returned Saturday with honors to their credit. Douglas Freer and Michael Callo were on the apple judging teams and won first place among the 115 teams competing. They held a high score record with 1,115 points each to their credit and aside from the plaque awarded the individual prizes were silver watch fobs. Di-Orto and Mazzetti were among the plant disease teams and won fifth place. The boys were in the poultry judging, potato, livestock, apple judging, plant disease and shop skill contests. This is the fifth year that Mr. Winchester and some of his students have attended the Farm and Home week at Cornell and students have three times won first place and once won third place. The first year Arthur T. Williams, son of Supervisor and Mrs. N. D. Williams, won first place in judging.

The condition of Wilbur Woolsey was much improved Wednesday morning.

Miss Charlotte MacCargar of Ogdensburg is visiting her niece, Mrs. George E. Dean.

Sergeant John Lockhart returned Wednesday noon from checking up the robbery at Crum Elbow of the home of Howland Spencer. Their verdict is that some one locally did the work or that some bum of the road found his way there. A window was broken and a key had been used to get about. It was found that the robbers had slept in the house.

Philip T. Schantz and William H. Maynard accompanied Reed Parker to the veterans' hospital at Chelsea on Wednesday. Mr. Parker has been a patient at Vassar Hospital for the past two weeks.

CHEAP SUBSTITUTE FOR RADIUM FOUND

Chicago Professor Uses Salt, Silver and Iodine.

Chicago.—The world's supply of radium could be held in a teacup. Little wonder, then, that men of science marveled as a boyish-looking University of Chicago chemistry professor, twenty-nine, told them he has made a discovery which he believes will mean an inexpensive substitute for the element whose value is measured in millions and in human lives.

From salt, from iodine, from silver, the discoverer said, and countless other substances as yet untried, perhaps, that substitute may be produced. In effect, he believes, the world's supply of radium may be increased almost without limit, and its curative powers may be given to all.

The discoverer is Dr. Aristid V. Grosse. Science owes his discovery to the fact that Doctor Grosse's wife went to Michael Reese hospital four months ago to await the birth of a child. There Doctor Grosse met Dr. Max Cutler, whom he told of experiments with radium he had been conducting at the university. Doctor Cutler placed at his disposal the hospital's supply of radium, one of the largest in the world, for further experimentation.

Since then, Doctor Grosse said, he has been able to make such common substances as salt, iodine, and silver radio-active. Their radio-activity is not permanent, varying from a few seconds to three days. But he believes future development will make it possible to use their radio-activity in the cure of disease, as radium is now used for treating cancer.

Of especial importance, Doctor Grosse believes that their radio-activity can be used directly, whereas radium is as powerful that it must be used indirectly, only its rays being used for treatment.

Scientists declare Doctor Grosse's discovery one of the greatest in recent years.

Air Conditioning May Reduce U. S. "Cold Bill"

New York.—A recent survey points out that common colds cost the United States between $450,000,000 and $2,000,000,000 every year. Only a small percentage of the total might be attributed to doctors' bills, it was stated. The greatest expense is to industry, through time and wages lost.

It is predicted that these conditions will be nationally improved in the next few years because of the rapid strides that have been made in the air conditioning field.

This will eliminate the possibilities of dangerous drafts and of cold infection through poor, uncleaned air.

For years medical authorities have stressed that clean, fresh air of the proper humidity is an aid to health. With this in mind, many of the new buildings and homes now under construction are being equipped for air conditioning in summer and in winter.

Missouri River Avoids Detours, Saves 50 Miles

Omaha, Neb.—Civilization is held responsible by engineers for the reduction of 50 miles in length of the upper Missouri river since the days of the Lewis and Clark expedition.

When those hardy explorers and their band followed the Missouri river upstream from Blackbird hill, near Decatur, Neb., they traversed a great bend in the river covering 15½ miles while making only 2,900 feet of northward progress.

The river then swung eastward into the present state of Iowa. Today the channel has cut across the former enormous horseshoe and flows virtually in a straight line.

In the days of the Lewis and Clark expedition the waterway mileage from Tekamah to Sioux City was 165. Today it is but 55 miles, only five miles longer than the crow-flight railroad distance on the Iowa side of the river.

Soldiers Must Not Walk in Uniform on Sundays

Budapest.—Strict orders have been issued by the minister of war that no soldiers shall be allowed to promenade in uniform on Sundays hereafter. In order to put an end to the street battles which have been all too frequent lately between civilians and the military.

Servants and peasant girls from the country were accustomed to congregate where the soldiers promenade, and as a result of the proverbial fatal attraction of uniforms, ever-ready young men who were not so distinguished were completely ignored. Naturally, violent scenes caused by jealousy led to broken heads, black eyes, police interference and finally the minister's order.

"Gentleman Voucher" Found Not Guilty

Boston, Mass.—The gold digger has no place in Judge Thomas H. Dowd's court.

Lucille Walker charged that Ernest Greenidge threatened her with bodily harm.

The judge asked her who the man was, and she explained that he was her "gentleman voucher."

"What do you mean by 'gentleman voucher'?" demanded the court.

She explained that he bought her clothes.

"Why, you're a gold digger," the judge replied, and found Greenidge not guilty.

Alcohol Control Frets Over Flood of Liquors

Washington, Feb. 21 (AP)—The Federal Alcohol Control Administration is worried about what it predicts will be a flood of whiskey, gin, rum, brandy, cordials and liqueurs this year.

Members of the commission are in daily conferences with each other and treasury officials about the 470 distillers and rectifiers holding FACA permits.

The liquor control experts estimated that 141,411,712 gallons is the maximum demand for liquor this year.

This estimate is based on the pre-prohibition peak year plus a population gain of 23.4 per cent.

What worries the FACA, they say, is the capacity of the permit holders this year. This is listed as follows:

Gallons.
Whisky	362,565,856
Brandy	4,203,921
Rum	12,500,532
Vermouth	525,532
Cordials-Liqueurs	10,968,245
Distilled gin	42,823,767
Compound gin	1,649,193
Others	949,332
Totals	427,317,022

Even with 80 per cent production, officials say, the supply would be 349,053,860 gallons, more than twice the estimated demand.

Representatives of distillers, rectifiers and importers, however, have asked for a year of "unbridled competition and production," pointing out that much of the production must be barreled for ageing.

SHOKAN

Shokan, Feb. 21—Mrs. Fred Herschenroeder of the mountain road is visiting friends in Kerhonkson.

Several residents of Shokan and Ashokan attended the funeral services for Mrs. George Pierson at the Glenford M. E. Church, Saturday afternoon.

The deceased woman for the past several years had made her home at Ashokan. The Pierson home before the construction of the reservoir was in the old village of Ashokan.

Dr. and Mrs. Bruno of Ashton, N. Y., are visiting at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Hans J. Cohn. Both Dr. Bruno and his wife are registered physicians.

Services in the Olive-Hurley old school Baptist Church last Sunday morning and afternoon was not largely attended, due to the bad traveling conditions. Many of the communicants reside at a distance from Shokan and practically all of them journey to the church services by automobile.

Morris Rose, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Rose, has joined the field artillery company in Kingston. Young Rose also belongs to Co. 215, CCC, at Boiceville.

Sap snows are of frequent occurrence these days. On Tuesday and Wednesday a heavy snow squall came rushing out of the northwest during the afternoon. The maple sap runs well but the day for this is rather short on account of the temperature, which has hung around the freezing point until well along in the forenoon.

Mrs. Julia Hogan is greatly improved in health, much to the satisfaction of her numerous friends in the village center.

The reservoir employees observed the two holidays this month. Several of the men were thus enabled to get in a little extra work on the family woodpile. Harold Elliott, an operator at the gate chamber, is one of those who have assembled a fine pile of poles and logs for fuel. Mr. Elliott during his spare time hauls his wood in small amounts with the family saddle pony.

A marriage of February 22, 1873, was that which united Charles A.

Winchell to Frances J. Davis, both of the town of Olive. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. J. G. Slater at the M. E. Church parsonage in West Hurley.

William Tuceling, west end farmer, has hauled and sawed up a great quantity of firewood this winter. Mr. Tuceling gets his operating power for the saw from his automobile. He also saws shingles for home use from chestnut trees. Trees about a foot in diameter are best for this purpose according to Mr. Tuceling, who has found that many of the larger dead chestnuts have too many worm holes to permit of their utilization for shingles.

William Personeus, well known state road poultryman, is much improved in health under the care of Dr. Cohn.

Arthur Carter, superintendent of the Sydney Vanderbilt country place on the mountain road, has filled his ice house.

Eggs are selling for 35 cents a dozen at the local stores. Fresh eggs are rather scarce here, due to the fact that many farmers and poultrymen have cut down on their flocks of hens and pullets.

The Bridge Club met Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Earl C. North. Refreshments of fruit jello, spiced cake, tea and coffee were served by Mrs. North.

Joseph DeWitt, the sage of Cool Breeze Hill on the north boulevard, still is unable to go out of doors much. Mr. DeWitt has been ailing more or less for nearly two months as the result of a bad fall on the ice. The Rev. August Pfau, pastor of the Shokan Reformed Church, was numbered among the local residents calling at Mr. DeWitt's home recently.

Carmen Nadal, Alva Winchell and Charles Personeus have joined the ranks of juvenile stamp collectors. The stamp "craze" first made its appearance in Shokan about forty years ago, during the pastorate of the Rev. Lewis Piper of the M. E. Church. Charles Piper, elder son of the dominie, and Robert Bloom, now of Newburgh, were among the youngsters who haunted the attics of older residents while on the trail of U. S. cancelled stamps. A revival of the hobby is noted here, as elsewhere, during the past year or so.

Lewis Thell is wintering about 125 Black Minorca pullets, the number being considerably less than in former years.

Mrs. William Tuceling has returned home from an extended stay in Kingston, her former home.

Alva Builey, Sr., is numbered among the local men employed on the town road improvements near Olive Bridge. The work at this time consists mostly of filling in depressions and widening the roadbed, the material for this purpose being taken from old stone walls in the vicinity of the job.

Shokan ladies who planned to attend the Rebekahs' covered dish social and card party at the Olive Bridge hall on Thursday evening of this week, included the following: Mrs. Saml. Nadal, Mrs. Fred Adsl, Miss Margaret Windrum, Mrs. Justus North, Mrs. George VonderOsten and Mrs. Earl North.

A local real estate transfer of February 23, 1860, was that of a parcel of land near the Butternutkill from Thomas Hill to Andrew Hill. Both men were prominent residents in Civil War times. Thomas Hill had a 55-acre farm here. Andrew Hill was a grandfather of Mrs. Jennie Green of Shokan.

Edwin Swenson of Locust Valley, L. I., is spending the holiday week-end with his family at the Homer Markle residence.

Robert Polan is assisting North Brothers in the remodeling work at Orval Fortson's country home. Mr. Polan spent the fall and early winter in New York city, where he was engaged in construction work. A new roof is one of the several jobs called for in the architect's specifications for the Fortson contract, which is the only one of any size being carried out here this winter.

Mrs. Anna Secor, of the Tonche Mountain neighborhood, is enjoying good health at the age of 84 years. Mrs. Secor, who is the widow of Robert Secor, a Civil War veteran, resides with her son, Edwin, postmaster at Ashokan. The venerable lady, through not a native of Ulster county, has made her home in northern Olive for more than 50 years.

CLINTONDALE

Clintondale, Feb. 21—The boys' 4-H Club of Clintondale will hold a parent meeting in the Grange hall on Wednesday evening, February 27, at 8 o'clock. A program of entertainment will be given and will consist of piano and vocal selections, tap dancing and speaking. Everyone is cordially invited to attend. A small admission charge will be made. Come and help the boys. George Ronk is the leader.

Mrs. R. M. Hasbrouck and sons, Ferris and William, have returned to their home here after visiting in Ithaca. William has just completed a Cornell College course in "Floriculture." His many friends wish him success in his chosen work.

Mrs. Fred Bragg spent Monday in Kingston shopping.

The many local friends of J. Wells Weaver will be glad to know that he is slowly improving from his recent injuries received in an automobile accident. He is still confined to St. Luke's Hospital. Among his recent visitors were J. Aisford, D. M. Sutton, John Smith and R. J. Wager.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Young entertained the members of the pinocle club at their home here on Wednesday evening. Cards were enjoyed until a late hour, when delicious refreshments were served.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Clintondale Methodist Church will serve a cafeteria supper in the church parlors on Friday evening, March 15, at 6 o'clock and continuing until all are served.

Among the guests present at a waffle luncheon at the home of Mrs. Anna Fuller in New Paltz appear the names of Mrs. Charles Elffert, Mrs. Nelson Van Nostrand and Mrs. George Knickerbocker from here.

At the annual election of officers of the Allied Communities Fire Company of Clintondale, the following were put in office for the year: President, George Conklin; vice president, William York; chief, Robert Harris, Jr.; first assistant, Vernon Thorn; second assistant, Peter Rosenkranz; recording secretary, Charles Ellis; financial secretary and treasurer, William B. Carr; entertainment committee, Tony Pollazzo, Oscar Mount and Andrew Montala; foreman, Charles Thorne and Angelo Albano. The annual supper was held in the firehouse on Thursday evening when about 100 members of the Clintondale department and guests from the Highland Hose Co. of Highland and the Enterprise Hose Co. of Walden were present. Packard Obtained by Stuyvesant Garage

Announcement is made elsewhere that the Stuyvesant Garage has succeeded in securing one of the new 120 Packards, the lower priced Packard brought out the first of the year and just entering production for display at the Kingston Auto Show.

The car was brought in from Buffalo Wednesday. The Stuyvesant Garage went to considerable expense to secure this car for the show. It is the same car that was exhibited at the auto show in New York, at which time the public was given its first view of the new model.

Question: How Far Will a Dollar Stretch?

Answer: Just as Far as You Want It To!

THE DOLLAR

THIS picture was made with the aid of one of those phoney rubber dollars you may have seen in the novelty stores. But REAL dollars—honest to-John shopping dollars—will stretch, too! You can make them cover more purchases than you ever thought possible if you know how and where to spend them most economically!

Making a dollar go farther is just another name for thrift, and thrifty shoppers are usually ad-shoppers. They know what they're going to buy—where to buy it—how much to pay—before they leave their front doors. They plan their shopping tours with the help of The Daily Freeman.

Get the ad-shopping habit. It is the royal road to wise buying.

"I Don't Want To Leave Baseball, I'd Be Lost Without It" —Ruth

New York, Feb. 21 (AP).—Baseball's biggest question mark, George Herman Ruth, is home again, but he is unable to tell whether he will find an acceptable job in the game he has personified for more than a decade.

Returning from a world tour that combined business and pleasure and re-demonstrated his tremendous pull at the box office, the Babe readily said he had no idea what he would do this summer although he scarcely could conceive the possibility that no baseball job would be open to him.

Ruth gave few definite answers to the rattle-fire of questions hurled at him when his boat docked but out of the conversation these points developed:

1—He will not wind up his career as a part-time performer or as a pinch hitter spending most of his time on the bench.

2—His big ambition still is to become a major league manager.

3—If he signs a contract with the New York Yankees, it will be as a regular outfielder.

"I'm so thrilled to get back home that I don't know what I will do," said the Babe. "It will take me a few days to recover my bearings."

"I don't want to leave baseball. I'd be lost without it. I think I'm entitled to a manager's job, or a try at it, anyhow. I don't think I should be asked to sign as a player and sit on the bench waiting for a chance to pinch-hit, maybe once in seven days. That's something I don't intend to do."

"I don't know whether I could play another full season as a regular. That would depend upon how I feel at the training camp. Even if I don't sign, I intend to go to St. Petersburg to throw out. I'm getting so old now I feel as though I belong there."

"Money is not the primary consideration with me now. I've got enough to live on. But I want to stay in baseball."

The next chapter in the Ruth saga probably will come in a few days with Ruth telling his "informal" contract to the offices of Col. Jacob Aronson, Yankee owner. That contract calls for a salary of $1 a year. It was offered as a stop-gap until the Yankees can discover just what Ruth intends to do.

The betting among baseball men now is at even money that Ruth will sign another player's contract with the Yankees and hope that a manager's job will turn up before the 1936 season rolls around.

On the face of it, the average baseball fan might wonder why the Babe is so insistent on remaining in the game. Now 41 years old, he has been in the big leagues for 21 years, the last 15 with the Yankees. During that time he has played in 2,515 games, including 41 world series contests, and not including countless exhibitions. His life-time home run total possibly will never be broken: his season's record of 60 home runs still is untouched; he has a major league batting average of .343.

"It's hard to get out of that suit," the Babe explains to those who wonder why he is so anxious to stay in the game.

Wittenberg Sportsmen
Plan For Feb. 22-23

Wittenberg, Feb. 21—Friday evening, Washington's Birthday, the Wittenberg Sportsmen's Club will sponsor a dance at the cabin near Yonkers-on-pond. Music will be provided by the Yonkers-on-pond band. The public is invited; there will be no admission charge, but refreshments will be on sale.
Saturday afternoon, beginning at 1 o'clock, the club will hold a show to which all sportsmen, whether crack shots or beginners, will be welcome. One of the chief prizes will be the Wittenberg coat, a pleasant little animal born last autumn. The committee in charge of the show is welcoming who will let the Wittenberg coat. A new trap has been purchased and installed for the event Saturday. If the weather is stormy, the contest will be postponed. Last minute information may be obtained from James A. Shullie, telephone Woodstock 24-3-6.

The committee has erected a stand-back for the comfort of the contestants and spectators.

The Winning Habit

One of the Handiest Habits.

"It's getting to be a habit," declared Eddie Lee of the New York A. C., as he clicked off the point that gave him the national amateur three-cushion billiard championship for the fifth consecutive year.

Lee had a bit more difficulty winning this year than he has had on past occasions, for the finish of the regular tournament games found him tied for first place with Gene Deardorf of St. Louis. In the play-off Lee preserved his winning streak by defeating Deardorf, 50 to 35, in 61 innings.

The New York youth seems to have a strangle hold on that championship just as he does on the national long distance swimming title. He's held the latter crown for the last three years.

Jean Borotra, famous French Davis Cup star, also has the "winning habit" for he recently won the French indoor tennis championship for the 10th time.

Helen Jacobs made it three in a row last summer when she successfully defended her national singles tennis championship. At present there seems to be no one ready to interrupt her winning way.

More Habitual Winners.

Then there is Harry Hinkel, the Los Angeles A. C. walking star. Beginning in 1930, when he wore the winged foot of the New York A. C., Harry has annexed the 3-mile walk of its metric equivalent, the 5,000 meters championship, every year.

Harold Osborn won the standing high jump four years in a row starting in 1932. The A. A. U. put an end to his winning habit by dropping the event in 1932.

Don Farout, new football coach at the University of Missouri, left a string of 26 consecutive victories at the Kirkcaldy Teachers College for his successor to try to prong.

How About Those Cavaliers?

When the University of Virginia's great boxing team defeated the strong Navy squad, the Cavaliers ran their winning streak to 23 dual meet victories. It was also the third consecutive victory over the Midway for the Virginia boxers.

Johnny La Rowe, 67-year-old boxing coach at Virginia, was confined to his bed with a ruptured blood vessel in his leg, while his charges pounded a 4½ to 3½ victory over Navy to preserve their string of victories.

La Rowe has been coaching boxing at Virginia for 14 years and in that period his teams have won 54 dual meets, tied two and lost 18. Most of those defeats came in the early days at Virginia and it has been since the formation of the Southern Conference eight years ago that La Rowe has rolled up his amazing records.

Virginia has won the Southern Conference boxing championship five of the eight years the title has been at stake. Eleven of the thirteen individual conference championships won by La Rowe's pupils were taken by youngsters who had never pulled on a glove before coming under the veteran coach's wing.

The Cavaliers haven't been defeated in a dual meet since they conquered Pennsylvania back in 1931 and for the past three years have won the Southern Conference title.

feated by Port Jervis and Liberty. Due to the closeness of the DUSO scores in previous games the contest tonight is regarded as a tossup.

The lineup for tonight's fray consists of Ed and Charley Beck, forwards; Jack Linden, center, and Ed Bahl and Lou Glenn, guards, for Kingston, while Ellenville is slated to use Hamm and Elmsan, forwards; Distel, center, and Spadaro and Hasbrouck, guards.

While tonight's game is the last DUSO game for the Klammen, the final games on the DUSO slate will not be played until tomorrow night when Newburgh will meet Port Jervis at Port and Monticello will play at Liberty. Port and Liberty are favored. If Port Jervis wins she will take the DUSO crown, the first DUSO basketball crown in Port history.

Portland, Ore.—Jules Strongbow, 275, Boston, beat Frank Speer, 257, Tennessee, straight falls.

Grant's Tomb

The corner stone of Grant's tomb on Riverside drive in New York, was laid by President Harrison on April 27, 1892, the seventieth anniversary of Grant's birth. It was dedicated on the seventy-fifth anniversary. The cost was about $600,000, which was subscribed by 90,000 persons—none of it being paid by either the government or the city.

Kingston Will End DUSO Season Tonight

This evening in the local high school gym, the Kingston High quintet will play its final game of the DUSO season, meeting the strong Ellenville team, once regarded as the second strongest in the seven-team conference.

At the outset of the season Ellenville was regarded as one of the strongest and Kingston as one of the weakest teams in the DUSO loop. Now as the season approaches the final games, Kingston finds itself in second place and Ellenville in a tie for third, with Liberty. The Klammen hold wins over every DUSO team except the league leaders, Port Jervis. The Ellenville quintet has been defeated by Port Jervis and Liberty. Due to the closeness of the DUSO scores in previous games the contest tonight is regarded as a tossup.

Report Three Billion Boost In Bank Assets

Washington, Feb. 21 (AP)—Assets of 5,467 licensed national banks in the United States, Alaska and Hawaii were shown today to have totaled $25,629,580,000 on December 31, 1934.

This compared with $21,747,483,000 in 5,159 licensed banks at the end of 1933.

The totals for both years were based on condition statements from the institutions.

Total deposits of national banks on December 31, last, were placed at $21,676,393,000, an increase of $4,086,421,000 or 23.23 per cent over the previous year. This, however, was due mainly to emergency expenditures of the government which immediately appeared in the form of new deposits.

Loans and discounts, including rediscounts, on December 31, 1934, totaled $7,488,652,000, compared with $8,101,156,000 on December 30, 1933.

Investments in United States government obligations, direct and fully guaranteed, amounted to $6,950,208,000, an increase of $2,491,061,000 in the year. These investments comprised direct obligations of the United States amounting to $6,262,109,000; obligations of the RFC amounting to $185,953,000; federal farm mortgages of $183,562,000; and HOLC bonds to the amount of $328,577,000. Other bonds and securities held amounted to $3,495,724,000, included HOLC's guaranteed as to interest only, the total showing an increase of $94,099,000 for the year.

Balances due from correspondent banks and bankers, including reserves with Federal Reserve Banks of $2,525,448,000, amounted to $5,976,623,000, representing an increase of $1,915,805,000 in the year. Cash in vaults totaled $456,466,000, a gain of $133,349,000 in the year. The book value of capital stock of licensed banks was reported at $1,786,409,000 on December 31, last, representing a par value of $1,788,154,000. The book value represented a gain of $198,159,000 in the year, while the par value was up $198,700,000.

Stratosphere Balloon Poised for the Take-Off.

Prepared by National Geographic Society.

Washington, D. C.—WFO Service.

ANOTHER flight by a huge balloon into the stratosphere will be made in the summer of 1935. Jointly by the National Geographic Society and the United States Army Air Corps, Capt. Albert W. Stevens will be in command of the balloon which will be piloted by Capt. Orvil A. Anderson. Like the expedition of last summer, the flight of 1935 will take off from a natural basin in the Black Hills, eleven miles southwest of Rapid City, S. D.

Preparation for such a flight is a stupendous task. From the inception of the last flight, in the fall of 1933, with the guidance of the scientific committee appointed by President Grovernor of the National Geographic Society, no pains were spared to produce the best possible instruments and equipment for collecting scientific data in the stratosphere. The instruments were to be of full laboratory size to insure the greatest attainable accuracy. This meant that some would be both bulky and heavy.

To house these many large instruments, it became necessary to design a gondola larger than any that had previously been sent aloft.

Finally, it became apparent that to lift the gondola and its cargo of apparatus high into the stratosphere, a very large balloon would be required. Experts were consulted, skilled in such construction, and a contract was given to design and build a large balloon than any previously constructed—a bag which, when fully inflated, would contain 3,000,000 cubic feet of gas.

It required five months to fashion this gigantic bag, and into it went two and a third acres of rubber-impregnated cloth made from long staple cotton. While it was being built, work was begun on the gondola, a globe of duralumin, lighter than aluminum; and in a score of laboratories and workshops from New York to California specially designed instruments were being constructed.

Meanwhile a site for the base camp of the stratosphere flight had been chosen in western South Dakota. Three considerations determined this choice: the point was far enough west to permit the balloon to drift even 700 or 800 miles to the eastward and still come to earth in relatively level, unforested country; the record of the region was promising for good summer flying weather; and the site was sheltered from surface winds.

Making the "Stratocamp." Early in June a camp was established in the deep, cliff-encircled natural "bowl" near Rapid City. It quickly became known as the "Stratocamp."

Capt. Orvil A. Anderson was on the scene from the start. Under his capable direction the camp developed from an almost deserted basin into a bustling little village of more than a hundred inhabitants.

Within a few weeks it had its drainage system, and sawdust-paved streets, a waterworks, two electric lighting systems, a sewage disposal plant, parking spaces, traffic officers, a hospital and ambulance. There was even a fire department with a full-size hose wagon, two professional fire fighters, a dozen fire extinguishers, and a volunteer corps to operate them, providing a safeguard against accident in handling quantities of explosive gas. No smoking was permitted in the neighborhood of the hydrogen cylinders.

Three telephone lines and two radio stations kept the Stratocamp in communication with the outside world; and there were two telegraph wires leading to teletype machines which constantly tapped out weather information from points as far away as Alaska, Cuba and Ireland. The special weather station set up at the camp, through the co-operation of the United States weather bureau, the signal corps, and the air corps, ranked in fullness of information furnished, with the half dozen most important weather stations in the United States.

Two weeks after the camp was started Captain Stevens went out by plane from Washington, taking some aerial photographs. A few days later Maj. William R. Keyser flew into Rapid City, and the flight personnel was complete.

Freight car loads and truck loads of the equipment necessary for a stratosphere flight had been converging on the Stratocamp for weeks. Three railroad cars filled with heavy steel cylinders containing compressed hydrogen arrived in Rapid City. Thanks to the generous co-operation of the National Guardsmen of South Dakota and their fleet of trucks, these tons of steel were soon neatly piled along one edge of the camp.

Collecting the Equipment. The gondola rolled in by truck, after a journey of more than a thousand miles, from Midland, Mich., and was installed in the commodious gondola house, the entire front of which could be opened up.

A few days later another truck brought in a huge box containing the balloon bag, which weighed two and a half tons, carefully packed in a water-proof container. The box was placed on blocks in the exact center of the level floor of the "bowl," protected from sun and rain by a canvas tent fly, there to remain until the day of the inflation.

The largest truck of all to traverse the winding road down into the basin arrived the following week—the liquid-oxygen generator truck of the army air corps. It supplied the essential liquid oxygen used to make breathable air inside the gondola during the flyers' stay in the stratosphere.

Several airplane loads of instruments were flown to Rapid City; and daily freight and express packages arrived, their contents varying from machine-shop tools to delicate vacuum tubes.

The last of the preparatory work was completed on July 9. From that time on the flight could have taken place any day, so far as the equipment was concerned. But it was essential that the flight be made during very special—and, unfortunately, rare—weather conditions, covering the area for seven or eight hundred miles east.

At last, on July 27, the long-awaited high-pressure area had drifted in from the west and promised for the next day the conditions wanted both at the Stratocamp and to the east. When, at noon, Major Keyser announced officially that the weather was satisfactory for the flight and that the inflation would begin that evening, the camp was galvanized into activity.

Off for the Stratosphere. Guests were barred from the floor of the "bowl"; only men with definite jobs to perform were permitted in the camp. The balloon box was opened and the huge, billowy mass of fabric was spread out on the circular sawdust-covered canvas-protected bed that had been prepared for it.

Bus load after bus load of soldiers arrived from Fort Meade. They were the men of the ground crew who were to hold the balloon in leash while the hydrogen poured into it.

At the gondola house, those concerned with the instruments were extremely busy. A definite schedule was worked out, minutes were allotted and, one after the other, specialists climbed into the black and white ball to install batteries and to give their instruments a final tuning up.

On all sides the preparations moved ahead like clockwork. At dusk the floodlights in the great ring that extended around the floor of the camp were turned on and a little later the hydrogen gas was started through the canvas tubes into the vast mass of the balloon.

By shortly after five o'clock there remained only a few last-minute tasks to be performed—the careful placing of rope ends for valve and rip-cords; the lashing on of a small mail sack; the loading of warm flying clothes and parachutes.

Captain Anderson and Captain Stevens climbed into the gondola; Major Keyser to its rope-enclosed top, the better to direct the take-off.

The outer ropes were dropped; only the gondola and ten small hand ropes attached to it held the gigantic bag of gas to the earth. Major Keyser directed the final ground activity of the flight before the ascent—the weighing off. Ropes were stretched to test the balloon's lift. Ballast was adjusted until the upward pull seemed just right. Then came the order, "Cast off!"—the balloon was away for the stratosphere.

Hide Furnace, Save Space

It is a simple matter to segregate the coal furnace in such a way that, while it still functions as capably as ever, it is hidden from sight, and the remaining part of the basement is ready to be cleaned and painted for recreation purposes. A room can be built around it. In this way it will keep its dust to itself.

Doctor Revives Man "Dead" Five Minutes

Tyler, Tex., Feb. 21 (AP)—Life that apparently left him for five minutes returned slowly to 71-year-old W. A. Strang.

Dr. Howard Bryant, who revived the former Smith county sheriff by injecting adrenalin into a stilled heart after he had folded his patient's hands in "death," said Strang's chances for complete recovery were good.

The patient weakened slightly early today as he lay in an oxygen tent but attendants were hopeful of recovery.

"I sure was gone that time, doctor," Strang told Dr. Bryant after he had been revived. "I don't know how you did it." He has not spoken since.

Dr. Bryant, who termed the case "extremely rare," said Strang came to his office yesterday, apparently suffering from coronary occlusion.

"His breathing was difficult—he was unable to speak."

"He was placed on an examining table and given stimulants but his condition became worse. He stopped breathing and his heart stopped."

"I told his wife he was dead and she called an undertaker."

Dr. Bryant said he tied the man's hands together and covered him with a sheet but instructed an attendant to stay with him until the undertaker arrived.

"I went back in a few minutes," Bryant said. "His heart began to beat. He began to breathe lightly. Oxygen was forced into his lungs from a gas machine. His color picked up and he appeared to be much better. Apparently he had a typical attack of coronary occlusion."

Dr. Bryant was reluctant to discuss the case and would not compare it to a similar case reported recently in England, where a man "died," revived and told of a vision of hereafter.
